Pinchot Confers With Leaders Of Big Coal Strike

Philip Murray and Samuel Pursglove Will Confer With Governor

SEEK AGREEMENT ENDING TROUBLE

National Miners' Union Will Send Delegation To Harrisburg Today

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, June 18—Two probable conferences on the Western Pennsylvania bituminous coal strike were on the program today for Gov. Gifford Pinchot, just returned from a five-day visit to New York and his home at Milford.

In an attempt to clear away differences between striking miners and operators of the bituminous region, the governor today will confer with Philip Murray, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America, and Samuel Pursglove, Pittsburgh, representing the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation.

The governor's action in calling the conference today, following preliminary conversations last week between the executive and Murray, was in line with his activities in the anthracite strike of 1923, when he acted as mediator between the operators and miners.

At the same time, representatives of the National Miners' Union, communistic offshoot of the major mine organization, will seek to meet with the governor and present their side of the bituminous controversy. When the governor returned here, he was notified that representatives of the national organization would be present today, and informed that that union would not consider itself governed by any agreements which may be reached between operators and the United Mine Workers.

In advance of the Murray-Pursglove meeting with the governor, it was reported here that an agreement between the Terminal company and its striking miners might be reached whereby the walkout of that firm's employees would be ended.

Previous to the conference, the governor declined to discuss it or any matters he would lay before the

PA NEWC OBSERVES

Visitors who go to Camp Fred L. Rentz of the Y. M. C. A., along the Slippery Rock, will find an attractice greeting sign at the entrance. The grounds are continually being improved.

Motorists seem to sense the traffic dangers at the Perry highway crossing at Harlansburg any more. Close observatioins show that cars approaching from both directions generally slow down as the intersection is neared.

The New Castle Fair grounds is a quiet place these summer days—quiet compared to the days in exhibition time.

State highway patrolmen, determined to put a stop to violations of the state motor code, were on duty on different highways here last night. They stopped cars to check them for different things.

Pa Newc today was in receipt of a copy of "The Japan Times & Mail" which came here all the way from Tokyo. It's rinted in English—so we'll read it.

The lawn and flowers in front of the St. Joseph church on South Jefferson street make a neat appearance.

Young Pa Newc observed quite a number of men playing Italian hand ball on South Mill street.

BELIEVE STARR FAITHFULL'S SISTER CAN SOLVE MYSTERY IN YOUNG WOMAN'S DEATH

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, June 18.—As the solution of the strange death of Starr Faithfull, pursuer of life, teetered between the theories of suicide and murder, telegrams which passed between Elizabeth Tucker Faithfull, her 19-year-old sister, and a mysterious "J" in Providence were sought today for a possible clue to mystery.

New York police requested authorities at the Rhode Island city for permission to examine copies of all telegrams sent to the Faithfull family from June 1 to June 8.

Starr disappeared on June 5, Elizabeth was identified as being in Providence on June 8, the day Starr's body was found on the sands at Long Beach, N. Y.

It was revealed today that Elizabeth received two telegrams in New York from Providence on June 7 and June 10. The telegrams were merely signed "J".

The pretty Elizabeth has refused to talk about her whereabouts on the day her sister disappeared other than to say she "was out of town".

When she was in Providence it was revealed that she borrowed five dollars from the hotel management.

Meanwhile the epitaph of Starr Faithfull reported contained in the last letter she ever wrote, was expected to eventually clear up the question as to whether the Greenwich Village beauty had committed suicide or was murdered.

Vanderbilt Discusses His Marital Troubles

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., Says He Intended To Kill Peter Arno, Cartoonist

Gun Was Empty—Vanderbilt Shocked, Decides On Saner And More Logical Course

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—The San Francisco Examiner today printed the following special dispatch from Reno, Nevada:

Reno, June 17—With a smile on his face—and a catch in his throat—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., reluctantly talked about himself and his marital affairs tonight.

After a day of dodging interviewers and of refusing requests for statements that poured in upon him from London, Paris, New York, and a score of other distant cities, the Vanderbilt heir revealed something of the situation that impelled him to seize a revolver and attempt to "get" Peter Arno, cartoonist.

Was In Earnest

Make no mistake about it, "Nealy" Vanderbilt was in earnest when he pointed the revolver and pulled the trigger—on an empty chamber. He wants that understood, emphatically he declared:

"If the gun had been loaded I would have killed him."

It was not a question of "changing his mind," Vanderbilt insisted. The revolver was empty, so he returned home. And now—

"Well, I've decided upon a saner and more logical course," he announced. Just what that course may be, he declined to say.

Disillusionment prevaded young Vanderbilt's conversation. "This has been going on for weeks," he said, huskily. But under no circumstances did he desire to cast any reflection upon Mrs. Vanderbilt, only hypothetically would he discuss the situation.

Under stress of visable emotion, Vanderbilt lapsed from the hypothetical and plunged into the actual. In a voice that belied the fixed smile, he asserted:

Aided His Rival

"I got Peter Arno his first job. I introduced him to Mrs. Florence Rice Smith—who is a cousin of mine by marriage. I brought him into our group here. I helped him in a hundred ways."

He reflected for a moment and then burst out:

"I noticed a number of things

Secretary Mellon May Be Making Preparations To Suspend War Debts, For Time

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, June 18.—Despite repeated denials, the British press remained firm in its belief today that Andrew W. Mellon, United States secretary of the treasury, was discussing the problems of war debts and reparations with British officials while in London.

Secretary Mellon came to this country to see sis son, Paul, receive a post-graduate decree at Cambridge university, and has steadfastly maintained that his visit had no official connections whatever.

Discusses Reparations.

However, the London Daily Herald, official organ of the Labor party, which is generally well-informed concerning the business of the MacDonald government, insisted today that Secretary Mellon discussed reparations with Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson during their meeting at 10 Downing street yesterday.

All the newspapers made much of the visit and dwelt at length upon the personality and power of the secretary. One alluded to Secretary Mellon as "Uncle Andy", while another described him as the man who said "gentlemen prefer bonds."

Hoover Meets Thousands Of Citizens During His Mid-west Tour

"NEW" HOOVER IS REVEALED ON TRIP

President Makes Many Brief Speeches At Points Along Route

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON WITH PRESIDENT HOOVER, June 18.—President Hoover was returning to Washington today well satisfied with the results of his 2500-mile swing through the Middle West.

It was a trip that carried him through half a dozen states, brought him into contact with thousands of people, and, which is more important, into close contact with Republican leaders who are politically essential to his campaign in 1932. If there ever had been any doubt about Mr. Hoover's being a candidate to succeed himself next year he pretty effectually dispelled it on the trip which ends today. It was a "New" Hoover that was revealed to the country during the past four days—a Hoover of a more genial and jovial personality.

Talks To Thousands

In addition to his formal speeches, in Indianapolis, Marioin and Springfield, the president saw and addressed unnumbered thousands of people throughout the Middle West from the rear platform of his special train. He joked with the people about the business depression, he appeared at every stop along the 2500-mile route, and in the seclusion of his quarters he talked politics with local leaders whenever and wherever the opportunity arose.

The political aspects of Mr. Hoover's swing about the Middle West appeared on the first day out of Washington. In West Virginia he saw to it that his special train was stopped wherever there was a demand for it. The state [illegible] aboard and accompanied him through the state. [illegible]

Oh where are the songs of yesteryear, that sang of Sweet Adeline, and where are the ballads of Casey Jones, with barbershop harmonies fine. And where are the lays of the days of yore with lines that were never raw, they're back on the shelf and put in their place are the tunes that go hot-cha-cha. These days of songs that are boop-a-doop, have little that recommend, they start out sour and hold that line and get worse as they near the end. Oh bring back the songs of the other years, let's hear of Sweet Nellie Gray, and songs about bicycles built for two, it's warm, eighty three today.

that can counteract the devastating influence of our great cities, with their slums and other degrading political and social life are the people in the great outdoors where boys and girls are taught the ideals that made this great nation great."

"There are many people today who are claiming they would like to help solve the difficulties of agriculture. No less a person than United States Secretary of Agriculture Hyde, a day or so ago in speaking upon the difficulties of agriculture intimated that uneconomic production was the cause of the farmer's difficulty, and that a corrected type of production would solve it."

"I give Mr. Hyde credit for more intelligence than to believe that such a statement is true to the facts. Suppose it were possible for the farmer to reduce his crops until this country became a country of deficits? For my part I thank God that I am able to live in a country that is a country of surpluses."

East and West

"There are parts of the west where such a system might work out, where they do not raise weeds readily, but here in the east we are compelled to follow a certain routine. Not a one crop production must be considered but also the elimination of obnoxious pests."

"We had a striking example during the war of what this means. We were asked to grow wheat. We broke our routine and grew wheat and wheat went to a starvation level and we were short on oats and corn. We are compelled to utilize the acreage we have and whatever the almighty gives us is the crop we will harvest.

"For many years agriculture has been compelled to assume the burdens of other industries. With the development of industry this was an honest policy up until 1900 but at this time it is not so. What we need now is an equity in taxation, a system of export bounties by the Federal Government that will do for the farmer what the import bounties have done for industry.

"Our representatives in Congress and the legislatures of the several states have known the cause for many years. The burden must be put somewhere and so it was put on the farmer. Agriculture must learn to meet the organized groups who have opposed them in legislative bodies and so demand equity for themselves."

Mr. McSparran touched upon the utility program of Governor Pinchot and said that if the governor was permitted to put his ideas through that the farmer would be enabled to get power and light at a cost that would permit him to use it as extensively as his city brethren.

Mr. Dorsett, State Grange Master consumed little time in his address He lauded the granges of the western counties for their initiative in holding such an annual picnic and urged them to stand united for the advancement of the farmers as a class.

Boak Presides

J. Audley Boak of Slippery Rock Township, Lawrence County presided over the meeting and opened with a short introductory address. Musical entertainment on the program was provided by groups from Meadville, from Crawford County Pomona, from Mercer County Pomona, from Butler County and from Lawrence County. Flaunt Court Order

(International News Service)

Pittsburgh, June 18.—Threats of the National Miners' Union to violate the injunction against picketing at the Butler Consolidated Coal company mines failed to materialize today. N. M. U., leaders also threatened to "crash" Gov. Gifford Pinchot's peace parley in Harrisburg today.

Decision of the outlaw union to flaunt the court order came at a meeting of the central rang-and-file committee, when a resolution presented by a miner from the Butler Consolidated company's Wildwood mine was adopted.

The resolution read:

"We refuse to starve. We demand the right to live. We demand food for our children and for our families. We demand the right to strike, picket and assemble and we shall exercise these rights."

Miner Arrested

One arrest for violation of the injunction was made during the night. Frank Rechko, 25, a Wildwood miner, was taken to the Northside police station on a suspicious person charge.

The food problem for striking miners in Brooke County, West Virginia, has become so serious that a committee from that field left Wellsburg, W. Va., to confer with N. M. U officials here about providing their families food.

No Definite Result

(International News Service)

Harrisburg, Pa., June 18.—Representatives of the United Mine Workers of America and officials of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal company today met with Gov. Gifford Pinchot at the executive mansion here in an effort to reach an agreement which will bring peace to the strike-troubled bituminous coal fields of Western Pennsylvania.

While that conference was under way, another delegation representing the National Mine Workers Union waited at the Capitol to lodge with the governor their protests against the parley with the United Mine Workers leaders. Facing several important engagements at the Capitol, including the opening of the Inter-State Industrial Labor Law conference, the governor was compelled to leave the conference at the executive mansion before any definite agreement was reached.

"In my opinion," said the governor, "it is of vital importance to the United Mine Workers and the operators equally that an agreement should be reached and reached promptly and I have stated that fact in this conference as strongly as I know how."

The main purpose of the conference, according to the governor, was not so much the agreement upon details of a peace plan but rather to stress harmony and urge the necessity of a basis for an agreement.

The United Mine Workers were represented at the conference by Philip Murray, International Vice-President, and Patrick Fagan, president of district No. 5. The Pittsburgh Terminal officials attending were Samuel Pursglove, president of the company, and Horace F. Baker, former president and now counsel for the firm.

The national group, which awaited the governor at the Capitol, was lead by Frank Borich, Pittsburgh, and included two women and several negroes.

PRESIDENT ON HIS RETURN TRIP TO WASHINGTON

following day he saw and conferred with almost everybody of political prominence in the state. In Ohio it was the same, and also in Illinois, where he spoke at Lincoln's tomb yesterday, before turning back to Washington.

President Genial

Everywhere, Mr. Hoover found the Republican leadership apprehensive over the party outlook for next year. This was particularly true in Indiana and Illinois, in both of which states the Democrats scored notable gains last November. Whether Mr. Hoover subscribes to that appresensioin is not, of course, known, but if he does it was nowhere apparent on his tour. He was genial and optimistic in his conferences with the local leaders, and there is not much doubt that he cheered them up considerably.

Throughout this stretch of the Middle West, which contains states that are vitally essential to Republican success next year, the president found the local leaders fearful of the effects of the business depression upon the party's chances next year. His Indianapolis speech was an effort to meet this situation. But by his personal contacts and his frank campaigning from the rear end of his train he did more to revive Republican confidence than was possible in his formal utterances.

Train Crawls Along

Today the route of the president lay through Ohio and West Virginia. Last night in Indiana, along the route of the Wabash, and the C. and O., he stopped at a number of unscheduled points to afford the people an opportunity to see him. Every request for a presidential stop was granted. The result was that the train fairly crawled along, while Mr. Hoover exchanged salutations with the people. It perhaps is safe to say that as many people have seen the president on this four day tour than saw him during the four months of the 1928 campaign, when he was an active candidate.

To compensate for this lost time, orders were issued today for the special train to speed up and it is probable that Mr. Hoover will be back in the White House earlier than the scheduled hour of 4 o'clock.

VANDERBILT DISCUSSES HIS TROUBLES

that convinced me this thing has been going on for some time. A week ago Sunday I left Reno with my stepdaughter—my wife's girl by her former marriage—and went to Sacramento to have dinner with Governor Rolph. Mrs. Vanderbilt stayed here. I learned afterwards that she held a house party during my absence."

Decides On Cause

He made cryptic references to "things that happened on Monday and Tuesday a week ago," then he resumed:

"I'd been brooding over it, wondering just what I should do. Perhaps taking this direct action was not the most logical thing—but there are times when a person can't control his emotions."

He seemed to gulp down a sob and looked away and said:

"I'm very much in love with her. And since my outburst I have decided upon a saner and more logical course."

Startling Facts Are Revealed In Trial Of Thomas

Sensational Testimony Presented As Prosecutor Faces Court

HARRY ENGLE TO OFFER TESTIMONY

(International News Service)

YOUNGSTOWN, O., June 18.—With sensational testimony uncovered in the opening sessions, the trial of Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas, long stormy petrel in the involved utility situation here, entered its second day with John T. Harrington, millionaire attorney and former power company head, first on the list of witnesses.

Jerry Sullivan, a councilman, testified at yesterday's session of the blackmail trial, that James Brennan, a large stockholder in the Ohio-Edison company, had approached him with a request to oust Harry Engle, former city traction commissioner. Sullivan said Brennan told him that Engle, later accused of demanding $150,000 from the company for "services rendered," was making it too "hot" for the Ohio-Edison company.

Many Charges Hurled

The charge of blackmail on which Thomas is being tried resulted from a letter which he dispatched to the city council alleging that Engle was using his office for a gigantic blackmail operation and demanding Engle's dismissal. Numerous charges and counter charges have been filed by the prosecutor, Engle, and several attorneys accused by both.

Engle was expected to take the stand today as a witness for the state, according to charges made by Fred Heim, special prosecutor. Engle was paid a secret salary in addition to the one he received from the city, by Harrington, manager of the power company when Engle took office.

A COOLIDGE TRADITION

FORMER President Coolidge is a confirmed vacationist. If there were such a thing as a religion of vacationing, he would be its St. Paul. With him taking a vacation is a solemn ritual, almost a religion. His vacations assume at vacation time an importance greater than his work.

During his years in the white house his vacations were prolonged and pronounced, receiving from the public press quite as much attention as the contemporary antics of the self-styled progressives in Washington. Those fishing and camping trips were simple yet ambitious affairs, uneventful yet memorable.

It is significant that it was during one of these vacations that he decided upon that historic vacation, announced to the world in those famous eight words, "I do not choose to run in 1928."

And now he chooses to make more vacation history. Weary of editorializing, he will suspend writing his newspaper editorials for two or three months while he finds recreation in mind and body in rest and play. Although the remuneration for his words of wisdom stand as a blasting refutation of the axiom, "Silence is golden," he chooses to cash no golden words for the period of a 60 or 90-day note.

When Cal Coolidge in his old age is asked the secret of his success, he will find it in the secret of taking a successful vacation. He, of all busy men, has learned the secret of how to forget the cares of the day the minute he closes his desk for a vacation. He has emancipated himself from that most merciless of all slave drivers, work.

SANE USE OF RESOURCES

The United States, with the largest per capita lumber consumption of all industrial nations, consumes annually more than a third of all the wood used in the world. It consumes each year more lumber than it grows, the deficit being drawn from virgin timber, which is reduced annually 2½ per cent.

The problem of conservation narrows down to one of inaugurating a sustained yield practice, which presupposes proper reforestation by land owners. There seems to be growing realization of the fact among timber operators. Since 1922, for instance, about 70 per cent of the lumber production of the entire redwood region in California has been under such practice. In Oregon and Washington forestry work is going forward, and the New York state conservation department is issuing millions of young trees annually for reforestation of privately-owned lands.

The surface has hardly been scratched, however, for lumbermen are still cutting into virgin timber at a great rate, and in most cases making no attempt at replacement.

Timber lands are similar to farm lands—they may be cut over, replanted either artificially or naturally, and cropped when the growth ripens. Too frequently, however, this system is not followed. Utilization of forest resources differs from use of other natural resources, in that when forests are drawn upon they may be replaced. Mined minerals and fuels cannot be restored to the earth.

This government is showing the way when it sells billions of board feet of timber for paper-making and other purposes on the condition that for every tree cut one will be planted. This is fair to all. It is obviously just as unfair to this generation to deprive it of timber that posterity may have an ample supply as it is for this generation to waste it so posterity must do without.

"FIGHTING RATHER THAN MOANING"

Courageous words, ringing with American spirit, were spoken by Walter P. Chrysler in announcing that the motor car company bearing his name has committed itself to a policy of expansion at a time that is usually referred to as one of business recession. The step is to involve the expenditure of some ten million dollars and is being taken, he said, "because there are associated with me some men who have met the economic problems of last year with raised fists, fighting rather than moaning."

Here is a message worth the study of men who manage business affairs of all kinds, large and small.—Post-Gazette.

NOT AS CRIMINAL AS WE SEEM

We unquestionably have a crime problem in this country; there is no manner of doubt about that. But it is a mistake to assume we are quite as criminal as the statistics would indicate.

It is safe to assert that the vast majority of the people of the nation are decent, sober, industrious and law-abiding. Mr. Wickersham in his address before the American Law Institute said that widespread disrespect for law observance was a challenge to the legal profession.

The New York Journal of Commerce, however, insists that the chief trouble is in the laws themselves, which, "by reason of their character and multiplicity, offer incentives to law violation." For instance, Mr. Wickersham calls attention to the fact that arrests for violation of our traffic laws have increased sixteen times faster than the growth of our population. This can hardly be called a proof of criminality. Scores of these supposed violations are due to ignorance or inability to drive well.

It may be retorted that ignorance of the law excuses no man; but the answer to this is that it would take a superman to understand the maze of traffic regulations put forth by towns, cities and states. To add to the complexity of the situation, these ordinances and laws are being constantly changed by local lawmakers and legislatures. We agree with our New York contemporary that the failure to observe these and scores of other laws is by no means due to "social depravity."

We are constantly hearing of the big crooks and hold-up men and all the other professionals. We need to go after them and go after them with all of the vigor possible; but we must not fool ourselves into believing that they are true representatives of the people of America.

One way of changing the situation, so far as the ordinary or average citizen is concerned, would be to have fewer and bettter laws. Simplify and make clear those that are essential and we shall soon see a change in the statistics concerning minor law violations.

In Utopia if a witness is threatened, they lock up the thug's attorney.

Latest unemployment figures show 38 flood relief committees out of work, among others.

With silver-tongued orators quoted at 30 cents and less it is still a better bid than a Democratic presidential nomination.

In the home town in the old times, the nearest thing we had to jazz was a tinware peddler coming down the pike.

On account of the business doldrums, some of the big deals recounted in the Pullman smokers are involving as little as $400,000.

What Small Boys USED to Do Dreaming and Grouching and Loafing And Filling Up the Days

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I'm not sure that I know how small boys spend their time now, but I remember very clearly how they used to put in their days. They spent them:

Wondering what to do next.
Dreaming.
Wearing out their shoes—or getting "stone bruises."
Catching catfish with worms, with a bobbing cork.
Catching carp with their hands, in pools when the river was low.
Bragging about their dogs.
Walking on stilts.
Sliding in puddles after a rain.
Trading marbles.
Raising pigeons and rabbits and forgetting to feed them.
Drying cornsilk in a fire in the backyard.
Cooking potatoes in a fire in the backyard.
Making willow whistles in the spring of the year, gathering wild blackberries in the fall.
Getting a couple of ribs at the butcher shop, to make a clatter with.
Staring at the circus posters for weeks, getting up early to see the circus train unload, wondering if the bearded lady was really a woman talking about the circus afterwards.
Playing about any new building that was going up.
Going to fires, and—as Samuel Butler said—sympathizing with the fire.
Kicking an old can down the street.
Stepping on cherry pits.
Making root-beer.
Counting white horses.
Using their father's saws and hammers and chisels and planes and forgetting to put them back where they got them.
Wishing it would rain; wishing it quit raining; wishing vacation would come; counting the days until Christmas.
Forgetting to fill the wood box; explaining how they happened to break that window.
Choosing up at baseball.
Being "good" when they know they've been bad.
Getting acquainted with a "new kid."
Wondering about God.
Fighting.
Wishing they had a pair of two-wheeled skates.
Sitting on the curb and talking about their elders.
Complaining because "there's nothing to do in this old town."

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

"UNUSUAL"

The Shriners had a convention in Los Angeles several years ago and it rained. It was not expected to rain. It was in the Spring of the year when it does not rain in Southern California. The Winter months is the time for any self respecting rain to perform in Los Angeles. However it rained. It rained up and it rained down. It rained for three consecutive days as though it had never rained before and was making up for the oversight.

The Shriners held their procession as usual only they processed in bathing suits, in B. V. Ds., in rubber overcoats and rubber boots in everything which only a Shriner can picture as appropriate. And the citizens of Los Angeles assured the Shriners that all this rain was "unusual."

That was the word, "unusual." It is the "usual" word heard in Southern California when the Weather Man performs in any other manner than that advertised by the various Chambers of Commerce in National magazines and newspapers. It sometimes palls on the ears of visitors.

It got the goat seemingly of a Shriner from Houston, Texas. The several bradcasting stations of Los Angeles offered the visiting Shriners the use of their stations for broadcasting anything which the Shriners wished to make extreemly public. The man from Houston seized the opportunity and this is about what he said:

"I come from Houston, Texas, the biggest city in the biggest state in the Union, where seventeen railroads meet the sea. If the sun shines in Texas, it is usual, if it rains in Texas, it is usual, if it is cold in Texas, it is usual, if it is hot in Texas it is usual; there is nothing unusual in Texas." well that will be about all from the man from Houston.

I drove a hundred and thiry miles yesterday from Sanderson to Del Rio in a fierce rain and when I arrived in Del Rio, all I heard from every one was: "This is very 'unusual'. It never rained before along the Rio Grande in May." The rain would not stop. It rained to-day and it looks as if it would rain tomorrow. and here we must stay until it quits because there is sixty miles of the worst wet weather road in Texas ahead of us.

No people have any exclusive right to that word, "Unusual."

To weary hearts, to mourning homes
God's meekest Angel gently comes;
No power has he to banish pain,
Or give us back our lost again,
And yet, in tenderest love, our dear
And Heavenly Father sends him here

Angel of Patience! Sent to calm
Our feverish brow with cooling balm
To lay the storms of hate and fear
And reconcile life's smile and tear;
And throbs of wounded pride to still,
And make our own our Father's will.

Once in a while I hear that some neighbor is unable to collect the health or fire insurance to which he is entitled, and I say: "The dirty crooks! They take your money year after year while you have no need of insurance, and then when disaster comes they try to break their contracts. Sue 'em! Run 'em out of the state!" But it isn't all one-sided. Last year a resident, unable to make a living in dull times, lay around home for three months and collected pay from a sucker insurance company. This year, having obtained protection from another concern and still being hard up, he developed another illness that lasted the full limit of time covered by his policy. The odd part of it is that in every case of which I have knowledge, the men who have trouble getting their money are honest while the crooks collect without difficulty.

Dear Fred: Talk about taking chances. Pedestrians take many chances daily of being run over by automobiles, but it seems to me that the fellows who are everlastingly buying chances on automobiles are taking too many chances, too. Why if they should have the winning ticket, the chances are that they would take no more chances, then what would be their chance of winning on any more chances. Think this is enough about chances. Chances are it won't be printed, anyway. GRACE.

The Flaxseed Poultice And Castor Oil Take All The Real Joy Out Of Childhood.

There is nothing else quite so irritating as a clever parody. It kills the original. Whenever I hear Mendelssohn's solemn and beautiful march, there comes into my mind the ribald blasphemy of the popular parody: "Here comes the bride, fair fat and wide; see how she waddles from side to side." It has spoiled the majestic old march for me and made weddings ridiculous. If the bride happens to be broad in the beam, I must chew my lip to hold back a guffaw. Darn the person who wrote that parody.

It may be on account of a few cactus plants we have parked in the front yard which we brought from Mexico. We are not kicking, just puzzled.

Reports Own Wedding In 'Free-Wheel' Style

Robert Copeland, automobile editor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, once remarked to the city editor, "If I ever do get married, please let me write the story of my wedding." He was married June 6. Here is his story of the wedding as it appeared in last Sunday's Herald and Examiner under a by-line:

"A wedding of no importance other than to those directly concerned occurred in Chicago yesterday.

"The unlucky girl was Miss Julia Alice Resoner. She became the bride of Robert Copeland, for four years automobile editor of the Herald and Examiner, and now hopeful of retaining the position for at least another four years.

"The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Irwin St. John Tucker, pastor of St. Stephen's Episcopal church and art critic of the Herald and Examiner staff. The minister did not kiss the bride.

"Persons desiring details will be interested to know that Mrs. Copeland attended Muncie, Ind., grade and high schools, Mount Ida School in Boston and the University of Indiana, where she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority. She is an only child, but does not appear to be spoiled.

"The bridegroom did not attend any one school long enough to lay claim to an alma mater. He is the eldest of five living children.

"As soon after the ceremony as the bridegroom was able to finish a morning's editorial work, the couple started on a motor tour around Lake Michigan. Followers of the Sunday automobile section motorlogues may read a description of this Summer drive a week from today.

"On their return to the city the Copelands will live at 7631 Eastlake terrace—that is, when arrangements are completed for four rooms of furniture."

Reparations Settlement Seen As World's Big Problem

Political And Economic Effect Of German Situation, Complicated By World Depression, Linked With Cancellation Of War Debts And Reduction Of Armaments

Reopening of the reparations payment question by Germany has revived the debate on debt cancellation and revision, with the possible economic and political effects viewed by the American press as a matter of extreme inter-national importance. While there is some disagreement as to the ability of the Germans to meet the payments required by the Young plan, there is a new tendency to take into account the possibility of a political overturn at Berlin based upon economic difficulties and its consequent effects upon other nations. The debt as a means of forcing disarmament is considered as a factor in the stand of the United States. The German situation is discussed in its relationship to the world depression, both as to cause and effect, and its solution is conceded to be a major problem.

"Should Germany be unable to pay or postpone a part of her annual payments," asserts the NEW YORK TIMES, "the intimate way in which her reparations and the war debts are bound up together would be clear to everybody," but that paper denies that this is "an argument for reducing or canceling war debts." The ALBANY EVENING NEWS thinks that "while war debts and reparations should be made as obligations, yet if it is proved that Germany cannot continue, then some revision may be necessary."

"The American Treasury situation," in the judgment of the PHILADELPHIA EVENING BULLETIN, "is little propitious for revision. As recently as the gathering of the International Chamber of Commerce, the Administration indicated its unaltered stand against scaling down war debts and the linking of those debts with reparations." The NEW YORK SUN gives attention to those seeking debt concellation in the emergency, and points to the theory of the "masters of internationalism" that "President Hoover's remarks on armaments were actually related directly to the war debts" and that "his intent was to say to these nations that if they would stop spending on arms he would remit the debts they owe to the taxpayers of the United States." The Sun concludes: "Under existing circumstances—the debt settlements being fixed by acts of Congress—it is still more difficult to accept the remissionists' propaganda." The SIOUX FALLS ARGUS-LEADER feels that "the nations regard the United States as an extremely wealthy and soft-hearted nation and are willing to play upon our sympathies to the fullest extent." The OGDEN STANDARD-EXAMINER offers the appraisal: "If Germany is to be released, the United States will be asked to do its part in making the burden less difficult to carry, but there has been a divided sentiment in this country over the question of our foreign debts growing out of the war."

"If Germany does not pay France and England," according to the ROCK ISLAND ARGUS, "France and England will not pay us. The result would be that we would have to pay the war debts of those who made up the Central powers in the World War—in other words, we pay for the war. Probably the best course would be for us to take a loss and agree to a revision of the reparations settlement.*The only thing apparently certain is that America will be found 'holding the bag.'"

"The present emergency should not be made the basis for a readjustment on the assumption that conditions will not improve," advises the INDIANAPOLIS STAR, pointing out that "Germany and the allies are not alone in their financial difficulties," and offering the opinion that "the reparations burden of the former and the war debts of the latter are not the cause of all their embarrassment." The CHARLOTTE OBSERVER declares: "Eventual escape of Germany from the penalties of the war is a doubtful proposition. War is an expensive enterprise and the nation that loses has to face its share of financial responsibilities."

The NEW YORK TIMES sees Germany as only one of the nations of the world suffering from the a termath of war and the world depression, and suggests: "The powers of self-preservation and reconstruction exhibited by the peoples of Western Europe since the war will bear comparison with the powers of destruction they developed in the course of the war. Possibly they are now catching for the first time the full economic backwash of the war. But the fact that it is a condition in which the whole world shares may make it easier for the nations of Europe to stand up under their difficulties."

"No one forsaw the depression, neither the Allies nor Germany," says the MORGANTOWN DOMINION-NEWS. "That depression has called for adjustment in a multitude of fields. It is senseless to contend that the Young plan is unaffected. And while the problem becomes more and more grave, and while the whole world looks to the United States for guidance, we again as have we so often during the last few years, cast our own eyes toward Washington, anxious to see whether the leadership that has been denied us in the past will be forthcoming in this crisis involving Germany and much of the rest of the world."

The HAMILTON (ONTARIO) SPECTATOR suggests: "As a proof of the willingness of the German people to cooperate in the effort at economic restoration, taxation has been greatly increased, salaries cut and other big economies effected, in order to produce a balanced budget."

Seeing international aspects in the situation, the BUFFALO EVENING NEWS says that "partial and temporary relief for the Reich is made possible by the Young plan," and assumes that, though "the relief afforded her through this device is obviously temporary, "Germany "hesitates because any precipitate action on her part would upset her credit and have a bad effect on the general financial system in Europe."

The NEW YORK EVENING POST states: "The German government cannot afford to increase the strength of the National Socialists by a policy which its enemies could interpret as one of weakness. While the Bruening government is fully cognizant of the international implications of its attitude on reparations, in its efforts to seek a solution of its problems with the cooperation of other powers, it has constantly to be on guard against losing control at home."

A SLAVE TO YOUR FAULTS?

As you grow older your mean little traits become more pronounced.

You make less effort to control them when in the presence of those who cannot avoid being with you.

If you were to keep in check some of the disagreeable tendancies you have you would make others happier and you would feel better yourself.

Sudden outbursts of temper are harmful to the health and do no good.

Permitting yourself to become angered by trivial matters burns up energy and nervous force.

You are robbing yourself of happiness as well as those around you.

One must be in a receptive mood to see the bright side of life.

When a person is fuming and fussing, smoldering or cussing a lot of meaness is being let loose and no room to take in the causes for happiness.

A person without a temper would be boring but a temper under control is a very valuable asset.

Besides it is a bad habit to give way to ill feelings.

Many a case of apoplexy is brought on by the rush of blood to the head induced by sudden emotion.

Whatever your mean streaks don't let them become chronic.

Unless you check them you become a slave to your own "mean little traits."

PLEASURE

I don't know just how to measure
Rightly what is known as pleasure.
Some men find it at the races
And all sorts of merry places.
Some go fishing; some go straying
Where at games mankind is playing.
As for me I'm quite delighted
When a budding plant I've sighted.

Round the garden plot I'm grooming,
Marigold and poppies blooming
With a sense of triumph fill me.
Zinnias have the power to thrill me.
I discover cause for sighing
If I think a tree is dying,
And there's something in an aster
That can make my pulse beat faster.

Some like joys that only bore me.
Charms that plainly are not for me.
In this world of endless choices
Something every man rejoices.
And I care not what my neighbor
Takes to soothe him from his labor.
All I say is I can chuckle
Over budding honeysuckle.

National Park Service Grows To Giant Task

Tons Of Snow Removed So Tourists Can Use Pass

RANGERS GIVE MANY LECTURES

By RICHARD RANDOLPH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

DENVER, June 18.—Life in the National Park Service of the United States Department of Interior may be strenuous, but it never gets monotonous, according to Horace M. Albright, director of the service.

In attempting to provide opportunities for an educational, inspirational and recreational vacation for millions of persons the service has cut out for itself a task as varied as it is interesting, Albright pointed out. In addition the duties of forester, the work of landscape architect, trained scientific investigator, economist, expert accountant teacher and leader in outdoor sports are all taken over at one time or another by workers in the park service.

Right now, for instance, the problem of removing 100,000 cubic feet of snow from Fall River pass highway, high in the Rockies, 70 miles from Denver, is being solved by the national park service. In previous years, a steam snow shovel on one side of the pass and crews of men with shovels and teams on the other side have worked for two months This year a new type of powerful snowplow is being used in order to have the pass open in time for the summer visitors.

This problem of accommodations increases steadily with the increase in the number of visitors each season. In 1930, 3,000,000 persons availed themselves of the opportunities of visiting the nation's playgrounds.

A visitor can have his choice of living arrangements, varying from luxurious hotels with every convenience, to humble cabins or tents where he can set up housekeeping and buy his food from a park store or cafteria.

All hotels, transportation lines and other services are provided by private owners working under long term franchises. The government, however, keeps a careful check on the rates charged and limits them to a reasonable profit.

Buildings, bridges automobile camps and other structures are made to conform to a carefully worked out type of architecture in keeping with the natural scenery of the park.

As to education. "The most important step along this line during the past year was the establishment in the Washington office, of a branch of education and research,to correlate and direct all educational activities in the field," Albright explained. "The main phases of this work at present are the naturalist service and the museums."

"Ranger naturalists conduct parties into the field explaining the natural history exhibits encountered along the way. In the hotels, lodges museums, and around the community campfires they give talks on a variety of natural history subjects.

"A system of museums has been developed which provides places of safe-keeping for objects of interest to visitors. These museums will be precious storehouses of information for future generations."

An outstanding project, Albright said, was the setting aside of the Mesa Verde National park in Colorado that American citizens might study the cultural development of prehistoric inhabitants of the southwest.

Survey Reveals What Boys Read

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 18.—Are American boys still reading penny thrillers or has the youth of today changed his reading habits? The Boys' Club Federation of America, which embraces 253 clubs with a total membership of nearly 250,000 set about to answer this question.

A survey now being made out of entire membership shows that the average American boy in the city no longer reads yellow-backs but has turned his attention to mystery and detective stories. The survey shows too that books written by Mark Twain, O Henry, Horatio Alger, and Raloh Henry Barbour are as popular as ever.

If the city boys' reading habits may be taken as indication of his interests, the next generation is going to be very much air-minded. Books about aviation and air exploration are very popular with boys, the survey reveals.

Dinner Stories

reductions of armaments by the debtor nations is suggested by a number of papers. The ROANOKE WORLD-NEWS concludes: "If America definitely announces that before it will begin conversations on there must be real agreement on substantial reduction of armaments, we can win not only a financial victory, but a victory for the peace of the world." The ANN ARBOR DAILY NEWS suggests "making the best of a bad bargain," and adds "By purchasing disarmanent the the United States would be salvaging something from the ruins of the allied loans. That would be better than permitting them to remain unpaid with interest piling up and resentment accumulating, and the prospect of settlement persistently growing dimmer." Taking a little different view of the matter, the The MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL says: "Whenever Europe begins to talk of suspending reparations and reducing war debts, the whole thing reverts back to the United States.—Cancellation of debts is a club our country holds in the business of reducing armaments We will never abandon it until we have advanced the cause of people through reducing the agencies of war."

The MADISON WISCONSIN STATE JOURNAL is convinced that "the problem of the war debts, if given consideration at a conference table where bias and prejudice are kept in the background, can probably be settled on terms that will relieve Germany from hardship." Hopes for such a solution are found in the visit of Secretary Stimson to Europe by a number of papers. The ASBURY PARK PRESS states: "The statesman of Europe will learn by word of mouth the general objectives of American foreign policy. Diplomats may think out loud together as they cannot think in international notes and parleys." The ST. LOUIS TIMES advises that "calm consideration of the entire question is plainly a proper international objective," and concludes that "there are signs that the world is about to hear some good news of real reconstruction." The LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL holds that "treaty revision is the solution of the reparations problem, but treaty revision is the crux of the whole European problem of today." In connection with Stimson's tour, th. CHARLESTON (S.C.) EVENING POST remarks that "it is just an old American custom to pretend that we are outside of the family of nations."

10,000 FEET OIL WELL

(International News Service)

VENTURA COUNTY, Calif., June 18—Believed to be the deepest commercial oil well in the world, a crew reported they had drilled to a depth of 10,000 feet, in the oil fields near here. Approximately 5,000 barrels of oil per day have been pumped from the completed well. At a depth of 8,000 feet 250 barrels were produced.

HOOVER APRON NEWEST CRINK IN BEACH WEAR

Takes Place Of Pajamas And Bath Robe For Swimmers

By ALICE LANGELIER
International News Service Staff Correspondent

PARIS, June, 18.—"Hoover Apron" dresses are the newest crink in beach wear coming from the French capitol of modes. Worth started them in order to take the place of the usual "peignoir," bath-robe, cape or what-not that has been in the habit of covering up the swimming-suit on the sands or on the walk to and from the dip.

They constitute a most practical costume which can be worn nearly all day at the seaside, at least up until dinner-hour at the less fashionable beaches providing a little wrap as well for when a cool breeze happens to blow up.

They look like simple one-piece frocks and are every bit as genteel for they are the same length as the average sport dress and tie around neatly with a belt. They are generally without sleeves.

One in rust-colored linen has a splashy white pattern and is worn over a white bathing-suit. A red and white wool cashmere apron is worn over a half and half black and white suit. A dark blue apron is abbreviated to form merely a wrap-around skirt when it is worn over a navy blue suit. Dainty little roses make the pattern of another charming apron dress in cool percale. It covers a pale pink suit.

These little Hoover aprons may put a little crimp into the popularity of beach pyjamas but the latter are certain to appear in large numbers at Cannes, Juan les Pins, Biarritz and Deauville this summer. Very amusing ones in plaid linen were recently noticed at Cap d'Antibes, which is really the home of the Hollywooders, by the way. The ground was white and crossbar lines in many different colors ran this way and that. This costume was trimmed with plain bands in an apricot shade.

Language Of Flowers Used On The Riviera

(International News Service)

NICE, France 18.—"Say it with Flowers" is getting to be a very common expression on the Riviera where all kinds of blooms are plentiful and can be seen in every one of the many flower-shops and bouquet-stations and the florist here have established a veritable flower language which is getting to be very much employed by the younger set.

For instance, sweet peas and myosatis mean "I am leaving. Forget-me-not" and moss roses and ivy denote a confession of friendship.

Lilies of the valley stand for unconscious sweetness and ferns mean fascination.

Helitrope signifies devotion and the pansy kindly thoughts.

Two heavily-scented tuberose speaks of dangerous pleasures, while the rugged thistle sternness.

What is the effect of modern Ultra Violet Rays upon tobacco? Dr. E. E. Free, one of America's well-known scientists, who was retained by us to study Lucky Strike's manufacturing process, addressing the Illuminating Engineering Society, said:

"The essential effect of the Ultra Violet is the production of better tobacco and of cigarettes regarded by virtually all smokers who have tested them as milder and with a lesser tendency to cause throat irritation."

Here in America LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette that employs Ultra Violet Rays in connection with its exclusive "TOASTING" Process—the only cigarette that brings you the benefits of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process which expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos.

Bill Jurges, 22, Best Rookie In Big Show In 10 Years, Says Hornsby

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, June 18.—His name is Bill Jurges, he comes from Brooklyn and he's making good in a big way in this baseball hot spot with the Cubs.

Bill is only 22 and is the first-year man in the National League circles. But he has just about settled the third base problem for the Cubs, and Rogers Hornsby calls him the most promising rookie he has yet seen coming up to the big show in the last decade.

The third-base problem has always been a bothersome one for the Bruins. Hornsby thought he had the thing beaten when he bought his pal, Lester Bell, from Boston to play the far corner. But Bell, although good, is far from a great player, and third base remained the wrinkle to be ironed out.

Along came Jurges, and bids fair to be the best and most popular third baseman in this burg since the days of Heinie Zimmerman.

"He can do anything on the field," Hornsby says. "He is fast, has a great pair of hands and a swell arm. He's not a remarkable hitter, but he is one of those timely hitters. He'll drive home a lot of runs for us. He is by far the best looking prospect I've seen in the past ten years."

The Rajah is an old hand at this baseball business. He does not permit himself undue enthusiasm over a rookie. Hornsby has seen too many potential Cobbs and Speakers and Mattys fade in the heat of big league competition to be carried away by a flashy performance.

Jurges has a splendid throwing hand and can cover a lot of ground. Hornsby says he is a streak in the field, is great on bunts and covers his post like a veteran.

Bell received a charley horse in a series in Cincinnati and Hornsby was forced to throw Jurges into the infield. He had had plans of shipping the kid to the Chicago farm in Los Angeles for a spell. But Jurges went in, fielded in spectacular fashion, helped break up a few ball games with his bat in Pittsburgh, and is now a definite fixture in the Chicago lineup.

He hails from the East New York section, played on the sand lots in that vicinity, and attracted attention of Newark scouts. He can play any infield position, except first, with equal skill. Newark sent him to Manchester of the old Eastern League, where he was voted the most popular player in 1928. The Cubs bought him at the close of that year and farmed him to Reading.

"I'm sure I'll be able to stick it out at third base," Jurges says. "Of course playing in this league is different from the minors. It's got to be—that's why it it the major league. I'd much rather play with the Cubs than with a home team. The home folks can be too critical, although well meaning.

Jurges is a rangy lad, just within six feet, and weighs around 175 pounds. It would be the irony of fate should the pennant race develop where the Cubs beat the Robins for the flag, to have a Brooklyn home-bred prove the deciding factor in a Brooklyn rout. Stranger things have happened.

Bo'Broadway

by JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

Central Press

NEW YORK, June 18.—According to government figures, losses suffered by unwary purchasers of worthless securities, in New York, are estimated at $400,000,000 a year.

Whaddya mean, hard times?

VIEWPOINT.

The aunt of a local gangster, recently put on the spot and with a string of murders to his credit, a yard long, said of her nephew:

"He was a quiet, pleasant, generous man. To me, he seemed very kindly."

Which raises anew the old question: Does the hell-diver see mud with the same eyes as the bird of paradise?

GRAIN OF COMFORT.

The concessionaire who has fared best at Coney Island this season is the affable gentleman with the wide smile and the persuasive vocabulary who coaxes you to the platform of his weighing machine by offering to weigh you free if he doesn't guess your correct tonnage, within three pounds.

Those who hope they don't look as thin as they know they are, and others who nourish the belief that they can't possibly appear as ample as they actually do, are the weighing-man's natural victims.

But he's a psychologist and sends them away, one and all with the glad assurance: "No matter what th' Doc might say, th' scales ain't no real judge of beauty or healt'."

PHILOSOPHERS ON RACKETS.

It's never really a problem until a bunch of university professors take a whack at it.

Four of these lads from an equal number of local hot beds of learning were asked the other day to descant on Rackets: Their Cause and Cure.

Said Doc. Doug. Fryer, Professor of Psychology:

"The racket gang which was revived by the Eighteenth Amendment has become a social institution. It is not entirely unwelcome by society."

Said Doc. Charley Shaw, Professor of Philosophy:

"As long as 'Scarface Al' Capone is as much of a hero as 'Babe' Ruth, 'Bobby' Jones and 'Charley' Lindbergh, we must expect the racket to continue and we must pay the bill. The public be blamed!"

Said Doc. Jay Nash, Professor of Education:

"The lure of racketeering is that it flirts with danger. This is especially true in the early stage of gang life. The city has developed a place where crime is play and where play is crime."

And said Doc. Walter Spahr, professor of Economics:

"In the last analysis racketeering thrives because governments fail to fulfill their obligations. It is high time that we return to the simple principles of honesty and efficiency in government."

And now that the racket problem has been solved let's go back to arguing the relative merits of the home team.

YOUR MOVE.

This is a gargantuan age. Everything is done on a big scale, or not at all.

A local boy named Fort—Charles Fort—has invented a new game of checkers. It's called super-checkers.

It's super all right. Seven thousand squares. One thousand men.

CREDITS THE AUTHOR.

Catherine Barjansky, the Russian lady who caricatures the great men and women of the world, in wax, denies that she's making faces all the time. No, it's God who makes the faces. She merely copies them.

She won't admit by even so much as a flicker of laughter in her brown eyes that there are claws inside velvet paws when she pats her little wax heads into shape.

Was there no mockery in her heart when, for example, she moulded that head of Sinclair Lewis?

The greater the truth, the greater the libel.

That applies to caricature, as well as to law.

THAT'S TELLING US.

Tobe, fashion director, denies that there exists in America, in the distinctive sense that the French understand it, an originator of fashions—a designer, from whose semi-annual collections American women may derive their costumes, round out their romances and diminish their spending money.

"The Americans cannot possibly achieve the result they do in Paris," says Tobe. "This is so because clothes are not things just drawn out of the air. They do not come haphazardly from an inventive and ignorant head. They are the work of scholars and artists."

Hear Bach Where He Played In 1723

(International News Service)

LEIPZIG, June. 18.—Music lovers who find themselves in Leipzig on any Sunday of the present year—or for some years to come—will have an opportunity to hear one of Johann Sebastian Bach's cantatas in the Thomas Church, where this great master was organist and choir director 200 years ago.

The famous boys' choir of this church the "Thomaner," also sing motettes every Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock and every Saturday evening at 6.

The Thomas School in which they are trained was organized in 1212, the year in which the church was completed. Only musically gifted boys are accepted as pupils, and from them 60 are chosen for the choir.

Bach was organist here from 1723 until his death in 1750, and almost all of his sacred composition were first heard here. Luther's first reformation sermon was preached in the Thomas Church.

Auto Disappears Into Quicksand

(International News Service)

EUREKA, Calif., June. 18.—Clam diggers are requested not to become excited if they should dig up parts of a car on the beach north of here. Mrs. A. R. Porter of this city was touring along the beach when her car became stuck in the quicksand. When she returned to recover the car, it had disappeared underneath the sand.

When the Government can't pay it borows more. It must take a great mind to figure out such schemes.

Chess Becomes King Of Games In San Quentin, Topping Checkers

(International News Service)

SAN QUENTIN, Calif., June. 18.—The ancient game of chess has taken San Quentin prison by storm.

Outstripping checkers, a former favorite pastime, chess is now menacing the popularity of dominoes as leading the convict sport. Chess is played in the cells at night, in the huge yard after work on week days, each Saturday afternoon, and all day on Sunday.

From the warden's office, where a group of "trusties" work, to the noisy jute mill, where 1200 convicts are employed, the discussion of "rooks," "castles," "bishops," "kings" and "queens" is heard throughout the day.

Vincent J. Christy, Los Angeles bandit, became champion following a tournament in which he won 29 out of 34 games, having one tie and a percentage of .867. Christy, who is serving a five year to life term, entered San Quentin in July, 1926, when he was 19. He is a native of Poland.

Manuel Navarro, a slayer, serving a 25 year term, was runner up.

Welby Hunt, 20, also a bandit, and one of the favorites in the tournament was forced to withdraw because of sickness.

In preparation for future tournaments convicts were exhauting the prison library of volumes pertaining to chess.

Newspapers having chess columns are eagerly sought, according to Warden James B. Hoolhan, who also reports that some of the convicts have subcribed to English and French chess journals in order to read the modern continental theories on the subject.

Oregonian Becomes Champ Wood Chopper

ALBANY, Ore., June, 18.—Any man who thinks he can chop wood might well consider the ability of Pete McLaren, world champion wood chopper.

He won $50 here by cutting through a fir log 58 inches in circumference in 2 minutes 45 seconds. Under terms of the contest he had to cut the log in two-thirds of the time required by Paul Miller, former Albany high school football player and experienced logger; Roy Morlan of North Albany and George W. Hayes of Albany. McLaren won handily.

MONTANA BEARS SHOW INCREASE

Alarming Increase Of All Varieties Shown By Survey

KALISPELL, Mont., June 18.—Bears—cinnamon black, brown and grizzly—are increasing rapidly in the vicinity of the Flathead forests.

Charles Hash, deputy ranger supervisor, who returned here from a trip through the wilds of the South Fork section, said the bruin family was growing.

New game laws forbidding the capturing of bears in traps or the hunting of them with dogs were said to be responsible.

Hunters now can get a bear only by getting close enough to shoot.

With black bears, cinnamon bears and brown bears this is a relatively safe procedure, but the big grizzlies, feared by even the veteran forest men, are dangerous to tackle.

The bears have increased to such an extent, Hash said, that a camp left unguarded overnight had little chance of being found intact the next morning.

The bruins will break anything to get at food caches.

Boat Rams Catfish; Catfish Steaks

(International News Service)

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., June 18.—A motor boat chugging on the Wabash River here met with an unusual obstacle.

The boat while at full speed struck a 40-pound spoonbill catfish and stunned it.

Carl Stahl, Barney Delaney and Audie Powell, occupants of the boat, after they recovered from their amazement dragged the big fish into their boat and headed for shore.

Later catfish steaks were had by all concerned.

The big fish was 48 inches long and its spoonbill was 18 inches long. It was believed to have been the largest spoonbill catfish ever pulled out of the river here.

Ancient Log Fort Still Stands In Illinois

WOODBINE, Ill. June 18.—Still standing near here and in a fair state of preservation is a fort of logs, surrounded by a stockade, which, the early settlers constructed as a protection against Indians led by Chief Black Hawk one hundred years ago.

A spring which supplied the settlers with water when they sought refuge within the stronghold still flows.

There is a movement under way to rebuild the ancient structure and utilize it as a museum. The fort is probably the last relic of the kind in existence in the Middle West.

Sunday Sleep To Make Up, Bad Says McGovern

By ARTHUR McGOVERN
(Written Exclusively For and Copyright By International News Service, 1931.)

NEW YORK, June 18—Have you ever said to yourself after a series of late hours, "I'll go to bed tomorrow night at eight o'clock and that'll fix me up all right. Gee! I'd like to sleep for a week."

Of course you have, and of course you've believed that it would do you a world of good. But that night of long sleep is not good for you. There is no such thing as "making up for lost sleep." Sleep that you lose is lost forever and you can only counteract the effect of this loss on your body by sleeping a normal number of hours several nights in succession.

The long sleep on Sunday morning is another popular habit. Don't do it. The longer you sleep, the more sluggish your system becomes. Your daily routine is upset and the irregularity is more dangerous to health than the loss of sleep.

Rest and relaxation are utterly essential to good health, but only those who are engaged in heavy physical labor require more than seven hours of sleep each night. The average man and women of today suffers not so much from physical fatigue as from nervous exhaustion. Sleep will eliminate poisons and rebuild worn out tissues, but these have a physic l source and the fatigue toxins that are the result of over-strained nerves require a different method of elimination.

For the sedentary worker, mild exercise is much more refreshing and beneficial than spending too much time in bed. Then again, if we learn to relax during the day, even for five or ten minutes at regular intervals, we will feel far less tired when evening comes.

Madame Mary Laudner, of Paris, France, who left New Castle yesterday after a month's visit here, was a music teacher for 25 years in France and among her pupils was a niece of the then president of United States, Theodore Roosevelt.

One of the biggest captures ever made by a New Castle cop—one that brought commendation from every part of the country—was the arrest of "Snakes" Wilson about a score of years ago by Chief Horner, at that time a patrolman.

A glass works stood on the present sit of the Shenango Motor Company.

If Highland avenue extended straight, without making the turn above Grant street, it would strike the First Christian church property on the public square?

The Parent Problem

by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Unrestrained Child Trained For Conflict

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

All moused in furs, some years ago there came into our home a mother with a girl of two. Before the usual greetings were exchanged that child pulled down our magazines. Pretty soon she seized a choice book belonging to my children which they had carefully used for several years. Out came a page before anyone had time to intercept the young destroyer.

The mother yelled the usual "No" each time, but the child, not dull of hearing always acted as if she were deaf.

The doors of the victrola she yanked open and pulled the records out. Several were broken.

In spite of my emotional upheaval I attempted to divert the child to harmless play, tried to tell her stories, even ventured to perform some antics, walking on all fours. A few distractions worked for several minutes but the young annihilist reverted to her seeming mania for destruction.

The mother sewed to have no resources for interesting her child nor any means of cultivating inhibitions in her. Once she said, "I don't know what I am going to do with this child. I guess she will grow out of it. You know, the child psychologists says children should not be repressed.

Some strong toys were given the child. With these she played for less than five minutes. She went exploring for more toys. She found some that were a little fragile, threatening their destruction until they were spirited away.

But this child was not happy. She whined a great deal, had several fits of temper, and was yelled at constantly by her mother who all the while had not spoken gently to her once.

What were we to do? We were the hosts. Our code of manners made us swallow back the obstructions that rose into our throats and play with fervor for the signs of the child's departure. Nor was the mother happy, either for the child continually annoyed her. Nevertheless, it had not occurred to her that her hosts had suffered loss of several dollars from damages by her child, besides the consumption of considerable body fuel.

But our annoyance was only temporoary. The losses we endured could pretty easily be restored It was the child who suffered greatest damages. With this practice in unrestrained destruction carrying with it the absence of regard for other's rights, she was being trained for all sorts of future conflicts and consequent unhappiness.

I do not know what finally became of that child, but up to the age of five I know that she was considered a pest of her neighborhood, constantly marring and destroying flowers and shrubbery and even breaking window panes belonging to the neighbors. She was not a dumbell: usually she could outwit every child and adult who tried to interfere with her destruction.

How can such a youngster grow up to be a good citizen to be considerate of others' rights, to be likable?

God pity the child who at the age of two has not learned the meaning of "No."

MINE SWEEPER'S CAREER VARIED

Has Passed Through Many Hands Since End Of War

CHARLEVOIX, Mich., June 18.—Perhaps no boat cruising the Great Lakes has had a more varied and glamorous career than the United States survey boat Peary.

The Peary was one of the four craft ordered for mine sweepers by the French government at Fort William, Ont., in the World war.

After the war, the craft was bought for a fifth of its original cost and used in the Byrd and McMillan polar expeditions.

A New York sportsman subsequently purchased it to go to Africa on a hunting expedition.

Later, James Bramley, a Cleveland millionaire, bought the Peary to cruise to the southern Pacific ocean in quest of a treasure island.

The United States engineering department acquired the Peary last year as an inspection ship.

The lake survey department took over the Peary this season to make soundings off Charlevoix port in charting Lake Michigan. The boat is commanded by Capt. Charles Green of St. James, Beaver Island.

State Will Act To Stop Pranks Of "Bomb" Jokers

HARRISBURG, June 18—Persons who maliciously release bad-odor bombs in the midst of theatre audiences are taking a chance on summary punishment, is the warning of Dr. A. M. Northrup secretary of the department of labor and industry. Because of the serious possibilities of panic resulting from the release of these "bombs" the department proposes drastic measures against any persons apprehended.

From the northwestern section of the State Harry D. Immel, director of the bureau of inspection has received several complaints that theater audiences have been almost stampeded by the release of these "bombs," especially in Erie and Sharon. In Erie several theatres have had performances abruptly teminated in this manner.

Immel says he has assurance from Lawrence Katz, head of the International Alliance of Motion Picture Machine Operators in this State that the alliance will take prompt disciplinary steps against any persons responsible for such occurrances.

"Although the State Fire and Panic Act does not specifically give authority to the department to proceed against the type of offenders" Immel said today "it confers such wide authority for protection of theatre audience from panic hazards that we feel warranted in testing its application. In any event we can turn the culprits over to local authorities for punishment under police regulations."

Coloradan Catches Queer Fish Alive

PUEBLO, Colo., June 18.—Al Severson went fishing and caught for himself a necturus.

A necturus is a weird looking animal, a cross between a water dog and catfish. It is a genus salamander—and is one of the largest members of the family. It is found in the eastern and central portion of this country, but so far as is known Severson's specimen is the first ever caught in Colorado.

The animal, about nine inches long, of gray-green color, with skin like a catfish, has four legs, with four toes on the front feet and five on the rear, and it has six external gills.

It can live for some time out of water.

Severson, who captured the animal alive, kept it in a jar filled with water for five weeks, but it has refused all food.

MONTE CARLO, June 18—Tennis trousers form the newest style of tennis togs now being seen on the Riviera courts. They were first worn by popular Senorita Lili de Alvarez, Spanish tennis champion and much admired by His Majesty the King of Sweden, who has also ben playing at the Country Club here.

JELLY AND JAM MAKERS USE REFINED CANE SUGAR

All over the country you will find housewives using refined cane sugar for making their jellies, jams and preserves. Experience proves that cane sugar insures ideal results.

The housewife who takes advantage of the low price of sugar, also the bargains in fresh fruit, can put away preserves for the winter at a real saving.

Canned fruit and preserves of all kinds belong in the diet. What's more, they make meals more enjoyable. Jellies are fine accompaniments for meat as well as a spread for bread, and canned fruits make delicious desserts and salads. Preserve with refined cane sugar. The Sugar Institute.

To smokers who are hard-to-convince

WE LIKE nothing better than to induce hard-to-convince smokers to switch to Camels for just one day.

For we know that after they have made a real test, it will be mighty hard to lure them away from this famous brand.

It's not easy to smoke parched-dry cigarettes once you have known the delights of perfectly conditioned Camels.

After inhaling the cool, soft fragrance of the Camel Blend of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos protected by the Humidor Pack, your throat protests against the bite and sting and harsh hotness that comes from crumbly, dry tobacco.

No matter where you pick them up, in any land, in any climate, Camels are the same fresh, factory-prime cigarettes.

For the Humidor Pack of moisture-proof Cellophane air-seals all the flavor in and keeps out weather, dust and germs.

This is no mere advertising story. It is a recitation of fact that has made the whole country conscious of a new superiority in Camels.

If you are hard to convince, won't you switch to Camels for just one day? Then leave them —if you can.

MODEL MAID DIES

(International News Service)

WALLINGFORD, Conn., June 18—Death has removed Mrs. Oswald H. D. Fowler's model maid. For thirty-seven years Miss Kate Reynolds worked for Mrs. Fowler and in all the years there was never a harsh word spoken to her. Miss Reynolds, fresh from Ireland in 1894, secured the place in the Fowler home the day after she came here to visit relatives. She always refused offers of other places.

See Gov. Cross In Democratic Arena For 1932

Connecticut Governor Is Being Boomed By His Friends

HARTFORD, Conn. June, 17.—Friends are talking about seeking the nomination of Governor Wilbur L. Cross as Democratic candidate for the presidency. Just twenty years ago next year a Democratic convention, was held at Baltimore, gave a complimentary vote to Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, of Connecticut, and then nominated Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey.

Governor Cross, like Governor Baldwin, the proceeding Democratic chief executive of Connecticut, went into office with an entire Republican ticket behind him, and with a legislature that was adverse to his policies.

But Governor Cross emerged from the session with a considerable number of victories. For instance he named 105 people to commissions and offices and only one failed to be confirmed. On the other hand the governor vetoed three measures, and all were re-passed over his objection.

The legislature set a new state record for appropriations by voting the sum of $65,385,212. More money than ever before was voted for humane institutions, all asked for by Governor Cross.

Now that the legislature is over Governor Cross will make a series of speeches on various occasions, chief of which will be an address at Brown University during its annual commencement. He started with an address before University people at Norfolk, here in Connecticut on June 5.

Just where the trail of his speeches will lead him is a matter on which Connecticut voters are speculating.

FISH BITES FOX! NEWS

(International News Service)

EKOLSUND, Sweden, June 18—When a pike bites a fox, that is news, at least to a Swedish farmer from Segersta near here who recently made an unusual double catch. Spending an afternoon angling he caught a large pike which he threw alive in some bushes. Soon a fox was looking hungrily through a fence at the big fish. With one forepaw he tried to reach under the boards to get hold of the pike, but by mistake he put his foot into its open mouth. With a lightning snap the jaws locked and the agonized fox tried in vain to drag the pike under the fence. But the space was too narrow and the fox was trapped.

Baby Gorilla Waxes Fat On Goat's Milk

ST. LOUIS, June 18.—Yonnah has a goat all of her own. And the goat has been instrumental in making Yonnah fat.

Yonnah is the St. Louis zoo's baby gorilla. Since baby gorillas in captivity are rare, zoo attendants were puzzled about just how to go about feeding Yonnah. They weren't familiar with the necessary diet.

Then August A. Busch donated a goat to Yonnah. So the gorilla's attendants began feeding her goat milk. In ten days the animal gained 22 ounces.

Now the gorilla's diet includes spinach, graham crackers, bananas, molasses, oranges, lettuce and bone meal aside from the milk.

Number Of Girls Will Be Provided With Week At Camp

Local Y. W. C. A. Is Receiving "Campership" Checks For This Summer

The News reporter who is especially interested in work with women and girls stepped into the office of Miss Frances Carey, executive of the Y. W. C. A. a day or two ago just as she was opening her mail. She was apparently greatly pleased with a check she held in her hand.

"Another campership," Miss Carey remarked to the reporter.

"A campership?" said the interviewer. "What is a campership?"

"Well," said Miss Carey, "You know what a scholarship is. A campership is like a scholarship on a much smaller scale. A scholarship supplies a girl or boy with funds for college—a camership meets the expenses of a girl or boy who could not otherwise attend camp.

There are many children who would benefit in every way by a period at our camp for girls at East Brook, but who cannot afford to go this year. Already a number of people and organizations are pledging us money for this purpose. Clubs often do this as part of their service or welfare work—and individuals frequently send camperships to the Y. W. annually in memory of some one dear to them."

"And who selects the girl to go?" asked the staff reporter.

"That varies," was the reply. "Sometimes the organization or individual giving the campership has a girl or two or three girls they wish to send. In that case they simply confer with the camp staff as to which group the youngsters will be happiest in. But more often the choice is left to the Y. W. secretaries who always know of many girls who would merit the gift of a week at camp.

Miss Carey was asked whether one must send the exact amount of the fee, or is it possible to send smaller contributions to a general fund.

"Oh, we usually have a general fund," the executive continued. "To which any amount, large or small may be contributed. But there is never any surplus. There are always more girls who need the camperships than the fund will pay for, so if you can give the good cause any publicity we shall be glad to administer the funds provided. Camp this year is better than ever and we wish it might be filled to capacity all summer.

Our camp staff is almost entirely new and they are bringing to camp more new ideas for a profitable camp experience for girls than we have ever had before."

Nicholas Colnot Is Pensioned At Carnegie Plant

Completes 46 Years Of Service As Blowing Engineer On No. 2 Furnace

After 46 years of continuous service as blowing engineer at the No. 2 blast furnace of the Carnegie Steel Company, Nicholas Colnot of South Ray street, has been retired on a pension.

Mr. Colnot began his employment at the local plant of the Carnegie Steel Co., on September 5, 1885. Prior to that time he had been employed at the White and Dean Grocery Co.

He has been a resident of New Castle since he was one year old, his parents having moved here from Sharpsburg, when he was just learning to walk, and he has been a resident of New Castle since that time, having always hade his home on the East Side.

Mr. Colnot has been one of the most faithful workers at the New Castle plant, having never had a vacation in all the years of his employment. He expects to take a good vacation now, however, and plans to visit his brother, John, in Los Angeles, Calif., in the near future.

During all his 46 years of service with the Carnegie Company, he was late for work only once, and on that occasion, it was due to a misunderstanding.

He states that conditions are no worse today than he has seen them on occasions before at the mill, and everything always turned out for the best.

Mr. Colnot expects to continue his residence in New Castle the remainder of his life.

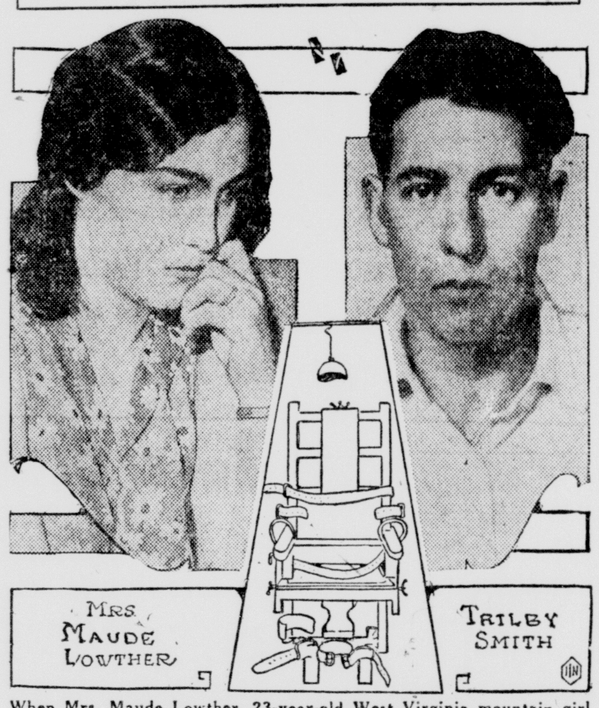
Ohio Death Chair to Get Its First Woman Victim

* * * * * *

For the First Time in State History, Ohio Justice Imposed the Supreme Penalty on a Woman When It Sentenced Mrs. Maude Lowther.



When Mrs. Maude Lowther, 23-year-old West Virginia mountain girl of Indian ancestry, met and fell in love with Trilby Smith, trucking contractor, of Ashtabula, Ohio, one of those triangles was formed that nearly always have the same inevitable end. For Smith, already married and dissatisfied with his wife, planted seeds of murder in the heart of his new love, which had a climax in the shooting to death of Mrs. Clara Smith, his wife, by the half-savage mountain girl. Now Smith is awaiting execution and Mrs. Lowther has been sentenced to death in the electric chair, the first woman on whom the State of Ohio has ever imposed the supreme penalty.

JEFFERSON, Ohio, June 18 — With stoic fortitude, Mrs. Maude Lowther, twenty-three-year-old West Virginia mountain girl of Indian ancestry, stood up in the prisoner's dock and heard the judge pronounce the words that sentenced her to death in the electric chair for the murder of a fellow human. It is the first time in the history of the State of Ohio that a woman has had to undergo that ordeal. The death sentence was the final curtain rung down on another of the all too common so-called "triangle dramas.'

The drama began last May when Mrs. Lowther met and fell in love with Trilby Smith, twenty-six-year-old trucking contractor, of Ashtabula, Ohio. The fact that Smith was already married did not prevent his carrying on an affair with the mountain girl for two weeks, during which, according to the girl's testimony, he repeatedly complained of his wife's nagging and evidenced a desire to get rid of her.

Euclid, the greatest mathematician of all time, taught the world many things about angles and triangles, but among his teachings there is none that advocates the elimination of an unwanted third side by the remaining two. It is extremely unlikely that Mrs. Lowther ever heard of Euclid, but she had heard the words of one even greater than the master geometrist which commanded "Thou shalt not kill." What are divine commands to a wild mountain girl compared to the wishes of the man she loved with the wild passion of a tempestuous nature?

So, according to Mrs. Lowther's story, she and Smith plotted the murder of Mrs. Smith, after which they would go away together and lively happily ever after, like people in story books.

It is a great pity that Mrs. Lowther didn't read the newspapers instead of the story books. She'd know then that such a happy ending as she vizualized rarely occurs in real life.

Two nights before the murder, she says, Smith came to see her and gave her a revolver and her final instructions. The stage was set.

On May 29, Smith made his big entrance. On the pretext of taking them to Austinburg, a village ten miles distant, to pass Memorial Day, he loaded his wife and two children into a truck and drove out of Ashtabula. At a thickly wooded point some eight miles out he stopped at the roadside and alighted with the excuse that the motor was giving trouble.

That was Mrs. Lowther's cue. She had been waiting in ambush at that point and now she stepped out and opened fire, killing Mrs. Smith, who was holding her three-month-old baby.

In scene two, we find Smith telling a story to the police of being held up by bandits who shot his wife for spite because there was no loot for them. But Smith wasn't of the stuff of which heroes are made and under repeated grilling he broke down and confessed. He is now awaiting execution for his share in the crime.

The next scene is merely the usual police routine. The putting together of two and two which resulted in the conviction of the woman who had longed and sinned for the happy ending. The final scene has already been described—the pronouncement of the death sentence upon a woman for the first time in the history of the State of Ohio.

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, June 18—The National Miner's Union, communistic labor organization and challenger of the United Mine workers of America in the present bituminous coal strike, today prepared to organize the Uniontown coal district under its leadership, Vincent Kemenovich, secretary of the strike committee, announced.

An unnamed emissary of the union dispatched to the Uniontown district to meet with about 100 members of the Union recruited there already and perfect plans for organization. Kemenovich refused to reveal the organizer's name or his itinerary claiming he 'would not be safe if his name were revealed."

Deny Russian Aid

At the same time, Kemenovich denied reports that the communistic union had been receiving support from the soviet government. He asserted that no funds from Russia were obtained directly or through undercover channels and that the work of the organization was carried on solely on funds gathered in the United States.

The Union official did admit however, that he had been informed by the International Labor Union at Berlin, Germany, that funds were being collected from miners in the Ruhr Valley which would be dispatched to the national miners union for distribution in the Western Pennsylvania regions.

Star Lore

LUNAR GEOGRAPHY
By Arthur DeV. Carpenter

While the scenery on the moon includes vast lava plains, wild, rugged mountain peaks and mountain ranges, it appears very strange in contrast with the topography of the earth. On our planet rain, freezing, thawing and winds, cause the rocks to dissolve and sharp mountain peaks to be washed down and covered in turn with soil and vegetation. But not so in the lunar landscape: Bereft of air and rains, the sharp, original formations of the rocks remain constant. As the moon is without water, no rivers, streams or lakes adorn its valleys; no foliage beautifies its broad areas. The earth has a wonderful history of ice sculpture in mountain and valley. Not so the moon.

Twelve Acres Of Garden At County Home Farm

Inhabitants of the county home on the Ellwood Road, seem to be assured of plenty home grown garden products during the coming winter. About 12 to 23 acres surrounding the home are under cultivation and while Superintendent Perry Snyder has not hired any men to work the place, it is in excellent shape, due to the work of some of the men at the home.

Thirty seven bushels of seed potatoes were planted, covering about 2½ acres, 3,000 cabbage plants were set out, 1,000 tomato plants, 1,000 pepper plants, half an acre of navy beans, ¼ acre of pod beans and ¼ acre of cucumbers, ½ an acre of sweet corn, a bushel of onion sets and 2 quarts of squash seed planted and other garden produce such as lettuce and radishes are growing in profusion.

The prize exhibition on the grounds are the berry patches. At present a long patch of strawberries is ripening, while the raspberry and blackberry bushes have a profusion of berries on them. Mr. Snyder estimates that there will be at least 25 bushel of raspberries and perhaps more blackberries.

The lawns are in good shape and the evergreen planting in front of the home is showing the results of care. In short the outside of the county home is in as neat shape as the inside and this is always in shape due to the care of Mrs. Snyder.

Children's Headaches Are Serious

Pain In The Head Signal Of Danger, Declares Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Besides classifying headaches as being caused by many different structures and tissues in the head, they may be acute and sudden, or chronic or occasional.

A person who seldom has a headache may experience one at the beginning of an infection. Indeed, one of the commonest danger signals the body flies is a headache. It is a good thing, a warning that something is wrong, that you should go to bed and call a doctor. Thus typhoid fever is frequently ushered in by a headache, as is a less serious disease, tonsilitis.

Children rarely complain of headache, and the symptom is always more serious in children than in adults. It nearly always means the onset of some infectious or contagious disease, such as measles, scarlet fever or diphtheria. A less frequent disease, meningitis, is characterized by a very severe headache; this is natural, since the disease itself consists of an inflammation of the lining membrane of the brain, inside the skull, and such inflammation and the consequent swelling causes pressure on the rigid bony skull, resulting in headache.

The successful treatment of many of these diseases causing headache in children depends upon prompt diagnosis and skilful treatment, and for this reason a headache in a child should always be the signal for prompt action.

Chronic headaches in a child are always of more serious import than headaches in an adult.

Another form of acute headache is what I call the deserved headache. The patient has done something to cause the headache and richly deserves it. A familiar example of this in past times was the morning after headache, the result of alcoholic excess the night before.

But it is not always dissipation that brings these deserved headaches. Excess of any kind resulting in fatigue causes tired nature to fly its warning signal of a headache. A business man forced by some crisis to work hard and late—on his nerve, as the saying is—is, as everyone knows, bound to have what he calls a splitting headache sooner or later. A woman getting ready for a party she is going to give usually ends up the day after the party with the same thing.

Dr. Sansum in California describes what he calls the shopping headache. He thinks it is due to lack of enough nutrition—a woman goes down town without breakfast or without enough breakfast, rushes around for several hours, and comes home exhausted with a headache—an acidosis headache, according to the doctor. His remedy is to drink enough orange juice in the course of the morning to counteract the acidosis.

Gospel In Greek Is Discovered

Search In Chicago Reveals Many Old Manuscripts

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Ill., June 18.—Purchase of a thirteenth century gospel manuscript in Greek, discovered here, was announced recently by Harold R. Willoughby, associate professor of New Testament literature at the University of Chicago.

Discovery by chance last fall of a beautifully illustrated tenth century Greek manuscript, belonging to Mike Potson, a restaurant keeper, started a search through Chicago's foreign colonies, resulting in the finding of quite a number of these parchments laborously written with a quill pen by early Christian monks.

The last manuscript purchased by the university came from the famous monastic library of the Greek Orthodox church at Jamina, Albania. Brought to the United States in 1916 by a Chicago dentist, it is regarded as one of the finest works of cursive, or running-hand script.

A retired Armenian rug dealer owned four manuscripts in Armenian, three of which contained the four gospels and one of the whole Bible. The latter was illustrated with miniatures drawn by Serguis, a prominent fourteenth century artist. Another manuscript, undoubtedly one of the best preserved yet found, contains seventy-five miniatures.

LOOKING BACK

IN NEW CASTLE

Manufacture of paper in the city of New Castle was first started back in 1868. Job and William H. Harvey established a paper mill in a stone building on the Neshannock Creek, within the limits of this city in that year. It has contained as a site for a plant of that kind to the present time. They make sack paper. Job Harvey operated it one year, when he associated as a partner in the business, Alfred McKarns. A brick factory was erected in 1876 and devoted to the exclusive manufacture of flour sack paper, twelve men being employed. The daily production was 1,800 pounds, 3,500 pounds of old rope being consumed daily in the manufacture of the paper sacks. This mill was burned in 1883 and was rebuilt in 1885 by the Standard Paper company of New Castle. In 1887, the Dilworth Paper company of Pittsburgh, purchased the plant and waterpower privileges from the Standard company and conducted the business for many years. The capacity of the plant was increased by this concern to from 4,000 to 16,000 pounds per twenty-four hour day. The product consisted of sugar bags, glazed hardware wrapping paper and manila papers. The industry was a very important one for the city until more recently and it is hoped that it may again become such to the community.

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

Thousands of sufferers from itching, bleeding or protuding piles have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor cutting remove the cause.

Bad circulation of the blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To end Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt was the first to discover a real internal Pile remedy. He called his prescription HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 960 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID tablets from their own druggist with a rigid money back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Eckerd's, New Castle Drug Co., invites every Pile sufferer to try a bottle of HEM-ROID and guarantee to refund the purchase price if they do not end Piles in any form.

Accidental Death Verdict Rendered

Inquest In T. K. Schrecengost Death Held By Coroner Caldwell At City Building

ELLWOOD CITY, June 18.—That the death of Turney K. Schrecengost, struck by a Harmony car at Marquis stop, was accidental, was the verdict of a jury following an inquest held by Coroner J. P. Caldwell at the police station last night.

Witnesses examined were Clarence Smiley, Harry Klinginsmith, Edward Shaffer, Edward Beltz, Walter Steele, Harry Clark, Everett Young, R. C. Adams, William Lenn, Dr. H. E. Helling and Frank Gribben. Despositions of Joseph Alexander and Liberto Lergo of New Castle were read.

The evidence showed that Turney K. Schrecengost, owner of a small truck, was driving the truck on the evening of May 20th. In the truck with him were Clarence Smiley and Clifford Lytle. It was raining shortly after 6:30 p. m. when the truck approached a point where the highway is crossed by the Harmony tracks at Marquis stop.

The truck was struck by a Harmony car and carried about eighty feet down the track. Schrecengost was killed. Lytle and Smiley were seriously injured.

Harry Klinginsmith, motorman of the car, testified that he saw the truck when he was about four hundred feet away. He blew his whistle several times. When he first saw the truck, the driver had crossed the tracks and was turning his car to recross. After the truck had been turned, and as Klinginsmith approached, the truck came to a stop about twenty feet from the track. Klinginsmith believed that the truck was going to stand there till the car passed.

When the Harmony car was about sixty feet from the crossing the truck was suddenly started up, and driven directly in front of the Harmony car. Klinginsmith said that he sanded the track, applied brakes and did everything he could to stop the car, but the distance was too short. He said that the Harmony car was going around 40 miles an hour when he first sighted the truck but that he had slowed down some as he approached the crossing. About forty miles an hour, he said, was the usual speed.

Edward Shaffer, conductor of the Harmony car, testified that he was in the rear end of the car and did not see the truck until after it had been struck. He said that he had heard Motorman Klinginsmith blow the whistle and had felt the grinding of the brakes as the crossing was appraoched.

Clarence Smiley, who was in the truck, said that he was seated between Schrecengost and Lytle. The truck had been driven across the track and had been turned to go back. It had stopped about twenty feet from the track and then started up. The next instant the crash came and witness knew nothing more until he awakened in the Ellwood City hospital. Smiley said that he had not heard the car whistle, nor had he seen it approaching. It was raining and the windshield was covered. Witness did not believe that Schrecengost had seen the approaching car when he started to cross the track.

There were no other actual eye witnesses except Lytle, who was not present at the inquest, having gone to Ohio after he was discharged from the hospital.

Other witnesses told of having heard the motorman blow his whistle and of assistance rendered after the wreck.

The coroner's jury was composed of E. B. Baker, C. E. Bair, W. F. Kegel, J. R. Burchfield, Carl Davidson and G. S. Young.

County Defendant In Damage Case

Suit Brought By Steve Hrivnak Grows Out Of Re-location Of Wurtemburg Road

At the close of criminal court in the county court house which was concluded Wednesday evening a jury was selected from the panel to try a civil action in which Steve Hrivnak is asking $25,000 from the county of Lawrence for damage to his property, caused by a re-location of the Wurtemburg-Portersville road which was recently improved.

The Hrivnak property is located at Ellport. It consists of a lot on which there is erected a storeroom and dwelling and a garage. It is claimed by Hrivnak that in re-locating the highway that a slice was taken off his property, thereby damaging it for business purposes. The county commissioners have made an effort to settle the claim, but have been unsuccessful.

After the jury had been sworn it was taken to Ellport to view the premises, in order that a better understanding of the testimony could be had. Hrivnak has witnesses who will give their ideas as to the amount of damage. The county will also furnish testimony as to values.

MOTORISTS WILL SAVE MILLIONS

Auto Club Figures Price Of Gas Will Prove Big Saving

Pennsylvania motorists will save more than $11,000,000 in operation expenses of their automobiles during the months of June, July and August as a result of reduced gasoline prices since the summer of 1930 the statistical department of the Pittsburgh Motor Club estimated today.

The report by the club shows that prices of both motor and anti-knock gasoline are five cents per gallon cheaper than during the summer season last year. Department of Revenue statistics show that motor vehicles in this state consumed 220,878,279 gallons of gasoline during the three months period of 1930. Officers of the club stated that they expect approximately the same amount of fuel will be used this year.

Automobile operation costs will be less than 75 per cent as high as during the vacation period year, the Motor Club stated. Food prices are approximately 30 per cent lower, also. These conditions are expected to stimulate recreational motor travel and help to offset effects of the business depression on vacations, officers of the club said.

Thornton Acquitted In Insurance Case

Jury Brings In Verdict Of Not Guilty And Places Costs On Prosecutor

In a verdict returned before Judge Hildebrand in court this morning, the jury in the case of Thomas F. Thornton, charged with mis-appropriating funds of the New Amsterdam Casualty Company, found the defendant not guilty, and placed the costs on the prosecutor.

The case was given to the jury after arguments and a charge by the court about 3 o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. The jury reached an agreement about 10 o'clock last night. The verdict of "not guilty" was returned when court convened this morning.

Mr. Thornton is an insurance agent who represented over a dozen companies. In making his collections on premiums he threw the money into a general fund, from which payments were made to the different companies.

Due to inability to make collections Mr. Thornton was unable to meet the payment to the New Amsterdam company, and the company brought suit on individual polices that were outstanding, upon which Mr. Thornton had been unable to collect.

In the trial of the case it developed that the practice he pursued in throwing his collections into a general fund, was the usual practice among agents of the city. There was no evidence of any intention on his part to defraud the company.

City Tailor Pensioned By Italian Government

Still carrying scars of wounds received in guerilla warfare on the Italian-Austrian front during the late war, a New Castle man who has been pensioned for life by the Italian government is quietly engrossed in his work as a tailor in a local clothes shop.

The man who was a private in the Ardito, that volunteer detail of soldiers who fought only with bombs and knives in major emergencies that called for exceptional bravery is Remeto Peluso of 226 South Jefferson street, one of the leaders of the local Italian community.

Today he is married and has a family of two boys and two girls. He also has a treasure chest of reminiscenses of the war and a batch of medals that would make an interesting study by themselves.

Born in Naples, Peluso early learned the trade of tailor. In 1916 he joined the Italian army as an infantryman and saw service in such famous Italian-Austrian war front battles as Monte Pasulio, Monte Fiore, Altipiano Asiago, and the close of the war at Sul Piave.

His pension came for meritorious service at the front line near Skio, Italy in June 1918.

The Ardito were then also called the "Black Shirts", but that organization was in no way connected with the later organization of Mussolini.

As has been mentioned, the Ardito was a volunteer detail. On this particular June day a machine gun nest with five Austrians had selected a choice location that hampered the progress of Italian troops on their march against the Austrian front.

Among the volunteer Arditos was Peluso. After waiting 48 hours for an opportune moment, the Italians routed the machine gun crew of five that had hidden in a sand dugout. The Arditos, with knives between their teeth, carrying bombs in both hands had surprised their enemies. The march of the main columns continued again.

For his part in this special service Peluso was presented with a medal for valor.

On June 10, 1918 he was wounded in the battle of Monte Fiore, the mountainous region on the Austrian-Italian front. And in the conflict at Altipiano Asiago, bits of bomb metal lodged in his left forehead, in his right hand and left leg. Scars of these wounds still remain with him.

To his father, Paolo Peluso who now lives in Naples, the soldier assigned his pension. The monetary value of the pension becomes automatically greater each year of the beneficiary's life.

Peluso was mustered out of service at Pisino, Istrio, Italy, in 1919 and then left for this country. He arrived in New Castle in 1922, and has resided here since.

ARMSTRONG CO. HAS DISORDER IN MINE STRIKE

Six Arrests Are Made—Extra Deputies Are Sworn In By Sheriff

(International News Service)

KITTANNING, Pa., June 18.—The bituminous coal strike spread today to Armstrong county, where disorders broke out among 350 striking miners of the three mines of the Buffalo and Susquehanna Coal Company at Sagamore, near here.

An automobile was stoned, a man was cut on the head by a rock and six men, who were alleged to have hurled the rocks, were arrested and lodged in the county jail here.

Sheriff George W. Shaffer swore in six additional deputies and armed them with riot clubs. They will patrol the strike district and picket lines.

The three mines regularly employ 750 men, but are now operating with greatly reduced crews. The striking miners ask recognition of the national miners' union, insurgent group opposing the United Mine Workers of America, also checkweighmen claim they have not received fair treatment.

The six men arrested were Sam Rizzo Jr., A. J. Skomo, Walter Chase, George Sultick, Tony Rizzo and Anthony Gasparino, all ranging in ages from 21 to 25 years. They were specifically charged with stoning an automobile owned and driven by J. M. King of Sagamore, and inflicting wounds on the head of James McKee, 18, son of Constable McKee, who made the arrests.

The spanish now have freedom, which means as usual, that a different crowd is scared.

Diary, Slain Girl's Only Refuge, Sole Clue In Mysterious Death Puzzling Police Of Two Nations

By ETHELDA BEDFORD
Central Press Writer

NEW YORK, June 18.—"Oh, well! What the devil! If I can't have him I'll get along!"

Thus Starr Faithfull, gin-drinking Tennyson-reading beauty, whose body was tossed up by the Atlantic after a strange death wrote in her diary—her refuge from the Jekyl and Hyde existence she led at 24.

This diary will reveal the identity of her slayer, the district attorney believes, as Starr jotted down her emotions over a period of four years' daily association with suitors and playboys, as well as many of their names and initials. Her last entry was two days before she left home at 9 a. m. 'to visit friends and return tonight"—the last time her family saw her alive. Her stepfather identified her body 36 hours later.

Only a thin dress was on her body when washed ashore. The dainty lingerie she donned before leaving home was missing. There were bruises to testify to a battle before death at lonely Long Island Beach, L. I.

From a home of culture this child of a divided family—her mother was divorced and remarried—went to trysts with gigolos in speakeasies. The product of Boston blue blood, she also was a descendent of Oliver Cromwell. A finishing school graduate, she had seen Europe eight times. One night she danced with noted millionaires, the next sought drunken underworld companions.

No wonder she wrote of "passion" and "suicide in her diary. And: "I have experienced every thrill. Life holds nothing more for me. And if (name deleted) doesn't meet me soon I have nothing to live for."

The diary describes every sensation she had experienced. She wrote of wanting to forget, of seeking something different, how she wearied of lovers. She wrote mostly of her emotions. Only a few events snagged her fancy.

The dead girl's mother and stepfather, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Faithfull, and her sister Sylvia Elizabeth Tucker 18, follow events from their tastily furnished apartment in Greenwich Village. Mahogany, oil paintings, oriental rugs and classics.

Her Associates Probed

Starr's murder has caused police investigation of politicians of three states, and her association with the son of a British peer. Even Scotland Yard, in London, has been checking her acquaintances abroad.

An unusual shading has been revealed in the gruesome picture—her stepfather told that a Massachusetts politician "too high to touch" brought tragedy into Starr's life five years ago. For which the politician paid Faithfull $25,000 according to the district attorney.

Was it this tragedy of girlhood lurking as a shadow which drove her to seek forgetfulness in excess?

Was it her stepfather's insistence that the man guilty of robbing her of the happiness that every girl wants, and that the man pay and pay in cash—could that have brought on her a humiliation which forced her to spend every possible hour away from her home life?

Find Discrepancies

The district attorney is investigating along this line. He says: "The stepfather has not been as frank with me as he should have been. We are finding many discrepancies in his statements of his deceased daughter's associations and conduct."

Faithfull has defended himself by saying: "I was trying to protect her reputation. She was an adult and entitled to make her own decision on the question of drinking. But I always was careful to fill her flask before she went on a party with stuff I had tested myself."

Of her trips to Europe a British peer's son said: "Starr was a strange girl, a mystery to her mother and sister. She lived apart from them and always had money, but she did not assist them. Last year I assisted Mrs. Faithfull and Elizabeth with money and food."

American League Race Tightens Up

Hustling Washington Senators Are Making Bid For Top Of League

ATHLETICS HAVE "SUPER-STARS"

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 18.—Which will win the American League pennant—the well balanced Washington ball club or the little group of super-stars who are making a desperate effort to bring Connie Mack his third straight pennant?

That the race is a contest between a club stressing teamwork and an aggregation depending upon individual brilliance was never demonstrated more clearly than in yesterday's games. While every man Jack of the Washington club put his shoulder to the wheel to down the St. Louis Browns by an 8 to 7 count for the Senators' 12th straight victory, George Earnshaw of the Athletics beat Cleveland almost single-handed.

Ferrell Beaten

Pitted against Wesley Ferrell, brilliant fire ball hurler of the Cleveland club, Earnshaw won a 4 to 2 decision for his 11th straight victory. In addition to holding the Indians to five hits, the big right-hander made two hits, drove in one run and scored another. Mule Haas, Mack's center fielder, staved off possible disaster with a diving catch of Hodapp's liner with two on base in the ninth.

Four double plays saved Washington from defeat, while Bluege's triple drove in the run that meant victory.

The Senators, who have lost only three games to western teams all year, won 15 out of 16 during their home stand.

All American League teams, en route to the West, will be idle today, while the eastern clubs in the National League begin home stays. The Cardinals invade Boston, Cincinnati plays at Philadelphia, New York entertains Pittsburgh and Brooklyn and Chicago will meet in a double bill.

In the only National League game played yesterday, Lefty Clark of the Robins whitewashed the weak-hitting Pirates, 2 to 0. Clark won his own game by driving in the first Brooklyn run with a double.

Brooklyn returns home today with a record of six victories and eight defeats on their tour.

Buckeyes Beat East New Castle

On Wednesday night on the East New Castle field the Buckeye nine registered a 4-3 triumph over the East New Castle Merchants in a fast game.

Guneh limited the Merchants to five hits while Shotts was hit hard, 15 blows being chalked against him.

By WILLIAM RITT
Central Press Sports Editor.

Herr Maximilian Schmeling and Willyum Stribling toiling in the cool breezes of Lake Erie for their July 3 squabble in Cleveland over the future custody of the world's heavyweight championship, in self-defense have turned to mashie, midiron and putter as standard tools of ring training.

Champ and challenger have been spending a lot of their time on Cleveland links sparring with par, upper-cutting in sandtraps, right hooking and left hooking on the fairways and punching on the greens.

The two maulers apparently have also fallen victim to the dread disease which has laid all Ohio low, insidious Golfobia.

Ohio has gone dippy, daffy, simply dizzy over golf this season. And with reason for this month and next Ohio is the center of the golf universe.

Starting with the western open championship tournament on the Miami Valley course at Dayton, Ohio will have three major league professional links shows happening within her borders in rapid succession.

Following the western open—which is no mean tee part itself—Ohioans will trek to the Scioto course, near Columbus, where the Ryder cup matches between American and British professionals will transpire. Almost immediately after this event, the battle for the national open championship, scheduled for Inverness at Toledo, will begin.

There you are. Three of the choicest golf spectacles of the year—and all of them taking place in Ohio mother of presidents and site of titular tee tussles, within a period of 16 days.

The western open has drawn numerous "big shots" of the links game, including Gene Sarazen, who will defend his western title won last season at Indianwood (Detroit).

Tommy Armour, recently crowned British open champion; Chick Evans, Abe Espinosa, George Von Elm, Mortie Dutra, Ed Dudley and Olin Dutra are some of the other major leaguers who will participate in the middle west classic.

While the western open does not rank with the other two events Miami Valley is sure to give the tournament field of 125 a clash worthy of remembering. The Dayton course stretches over 6,655 yards which must be negotiated in 71 strokes to attain par. Its elevated greens, clever trapping and undulating ground promise a test that will call for the best.

Jack Reider Is With Shenango

Jack Reider, another good ball player of this city has returned and will be seen with a local club for the remainder of the season. Carm Sacco, manager of the Shenango team stated today that Reider has signed to play with the Lawrence County league team.

Reider played his first game against Bessemer on Wednesday night. He got four assists, three put out and also secured two hits. Reider along with Sank McCullough will be seen in the Shenango lineup on Saturday when the Shenango nine plays the league leading Universal team at Centennial field.

Saturday Play Will Be Keen

Play at the course of the New Castle Field Club on Saturday will be of interest to the golfers of the club and competition should be keen as many of the golfers of the club are now rounding into first class form. The competition scheduled for the day is a Best Ball Half Combined Handicap medal play. Weather conditions being good, there will be a large field of contestants.

Tommy Armour Is Out Of Tourney

British Open Champion Decides To Foresake Play In Western Open

(International News Service)

DAYTON, O., June 18.—Minus Tommy Armour, British open champion, who scratched his entry late yesterday, a field of 130 players set off over the beautiful but difficult Miami Valley golf course here this morning in the first round of the 31st annual western open golf championship.

Armour deferred participating in the tournament here on the ground that he had had insufficient time to recuperate from the strenuous test at Carnoustie.

Foremost among those who set out to vie with Gene Sarazen, who is defending his western open title, were Walter Hagen of Detroit, a four-time champion; George Von Elm of Los Angeles, the businessman golfer; Ed Dudley of Wilmington, Del.; Denny Shute of Hudson, O., and the towering Dutra brothers, Mortie and Olin, who hail respectively from Long Beach and Los Angeles, Calif.

Play is Started.

Late starting times were reserved for these stars.

The first to tee off this morning were the home pro, Jim Noble, and Abe Espinosa of Chicago, western open champion of 1928.

Barring a sudden and unexpected change in weather, indications were that Miami Valley's par of 71, which has been impregnable in the past with one exception, will find itself bested by the brilliant field.

Shenango Tops Bessemer Nine

Shenango registered a Lawrence County league victory over the Bessemer aggregation on Wednesday night at Centennial field. The score was 8-3.

The hitting of McCullough, Reider and Glasser featured for the Shenango while P. Puromaki and D. Nord were the best for the losers.

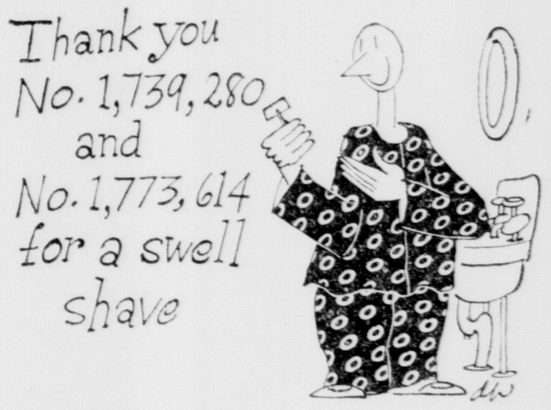
RAZOR AD-VENTURES by don herold



UNCLE SAM has granted Patents No. 1,739,280 and No. 1,773,614 to the new Gem Micromatic Blade. Uncle Sam's whiskers don't keep him from knowing something good in a razor blade when he sees it.

A new surgical steel has been developed which gives this blade EXTRA LONG LIFE and eliminates that saw-teeth edging visible in most blades under big-time microscopes.

Heavy, sturdy, reinforced—with no fancy perforations to decrease its stability—the blade sets firmly in the razor without strain, bend, tension or torsion.

And the new Gem Razor—hush my mouth—it's a revelation and a revolution—with patents all its own—one-piece construction, automatic handle-twist open-and-close and razor alignment—balance—beauty—and brains—oh boy!

Rocco Loses By Technical Kayo

Emmett Rocco, Ellwood City Battler Stopped By Stanley Poreda

END COMES IN TENTH ROUND

(International News Service)

CLEVELAND, June 18.—Stanley Poredo, newest sensation in the heavyweight boxing ranks, today had made a successful debut into mid-western boxing circles by scoring a technical knockout over Emmett Rocco, giant Ellwood City, Pa. battler.

The end came in the last round of the scheduled ten-round melee after Poredo had mercilessly slammed Rocco all over the ring from the beginning of the gory battle. The Pennsylvanian was wabbling helplessly about the ring when his seconds tossed in a towel to end his suffering.

There was little doubt after the end of the first round that the New Jersey boxer was the complete master of the situation. For five torrid rounds, Poredo tried to wear Rocco down, dancing in to land a telling blow and then dancing away again.

When this method failed to wear the game Rocco out, Poredo launched an entirely different attack to the Pennsylvanian's face and head bringing blood from new cuts in each of the last five rounds. The judges gave the easterner every round.

Micky Solomen, New Castle, won his fight by decision. Solomen fought the semi-final to the main go.

Seventh Ward Ramblers registered a 9-6 victory over the Centennials on Wednesday night on the Valley Way field. The game proved fast throughout.

The New Castle Dry Goods mushball team defeated the Lingerlights 16 to 10 in a mushball game at Mt. Jackson on Wednesday night. The game was featured by a lot of heavy hitting. Kerr pitched for the Dry Goods, and Thompson for the Lingerlights.

Ball Yard Banter

"All my enemies," Uncle Wilbert Robinson, boss of that balking Brooklyn ball club, is quoted as crying, "are newspapermen. I wish some of those guys that try to run my team for me via the sport page would come down on the diamond and try to get results with their theories. It's easier to pound a typewriter than to get baseball victories out of temperamental players."

* * *

None will disagree with Robbie on that last sentence, but, then—Uncle Wilbert never talked about temperament when his club was going places, mostly up.

* * *

Naturally, Robbie resents criticism and the rotund manager has been sorely harassed this season and so must be forgiven if he gets a bit hot under the collar. But it's not the newspapers that have been losing ball games for Brooklyn, it's the ball players Robbie himself picked out to battle for Flatbush.

* * *

After a miserable start the Brooklyns rallied for a space and then fell back into their losing. They just cannot get going for some reason.

* * *

And this is the same club, man for man, that was so sure of winning the pennant that the boys were talking world series back in March. Seldom has a team gone into a campaign as confident as were the Robins. Now that confidence has disappeared completely. The Robins might have prevented the Cincinnati disaster if they had gone to Redland field figuring they had a real chance to win.

* * *

Meanwhile, to make matters worse for the harmony of the club some critics are already bawling for Uncle Wilbert's scalp.

* * *

Brooklyn still possesses the material for a fine winning ball club. But Robbie has a far harder task than that of teaching his charges to play ball. He must overcome the mental depression into which his athletes seem to have fallen.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Stock Market Is Dull; Transactions Are Fewer

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, June 18.—General conditions in the stock market were unchanged this morning, and dullness was the outstanding feature. With transactions of only 200,000 shares in the first half-hour, and idling tickers during the balance of the forenoon, the session appeared to be contesting with yesterday's market for the record of the dullest market in six years. From the middle of 1926 until yesterday transaction on the big board did not fall under a million shares.

The prospect of a smoothing over of European financial tangles appeared brighter today and some improvement was noted in American trade conditions, particularly in the important retail lines. Price reductions and "sales" have had the desired effect of moving a vast amount of clothing and other material into the channels of consumption.

Most of the Industrials and Specialties which were under pressure on Wednesday refused to recede to lower levels. Westinghouse duplicated yesterday's low price at 55⅛, but rallied to 56 in narrow trading. Johns Manville, in a 3 point drop to 59, reflected the dullness in the building trades. Industrial alcohol fell off 2½ to 25¼ on lower dividend talk and J. I. Case was down about 3.

Pantages Jurors Unable To Agree

Jury Trying Alexander Pantages For "Love Mart Attack" Still Locked Up

JURORS ASK FOR INSTRUCTIONS

(International News Service)

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 18.—Apparently unable to agree, the jury of nine men and three women, deliberating the fate of Alexander Pantages, millionaire showman, and his three co-defendants, accused of conspiracy to violate the juvenile court laws, was still locked up today.

A decision had been expected shortly after the jurors returned to the courtroom and asked for the written copy of Judge L. N. Turrentine's instructions.

Pantages and Jesse H. Shreve, waithy real estate operator, sat anxiously awaiting the verdict in the courtroom, while Olive Day Clark and William Jobelmann, the other defendants, waited the decision in their cells in the county jail.

Mrs. Lois Pantages, wife of the theater magnet and her close friend, Mrs. Adele McNeil, sat with Pantages. The showman's wife seemed to suffer from the strain more than did Pantages himself.

State Police Arrest Three Alleged Kidnappers Who Stop Pottstown Doctor

DOCTOR IS ALSO BANK PRESIDENT

(International News Service)

POTTSTOWN, Pa., June 18.—Three alleged kidnapers were under arrest here today, their plot to kidnap a bank president and hold him for ransom, thwarted.

According to state police, the bank president, Dr. J. Elmer Porter, head of the Security Trust company of Pottstown, was threatened several days ago and had been placed under guard.

Last night state police accompanied Dr. Porter when he went to answer a mysterious call for medical aid. Police arrested three men when they stopped Dr. Porter's car at a deserted street intersection.

The men identified themselves as Edward Kitchell, 31; Harry McKay, 33, and Foster Weand, 38, all of Philadelphia. Police charged the latter had a special delivery letter in his pocket addressed to the physician's brother demanding $15,000 ransom. The troopers also asserted the trio were members of a gang who plotted to kidnap the banker-physician.

Some News, Some Views, But Mostly Just Observations Of Interesting Things Around New Castle

Officer Tommy Jones doesn't know whether to feel complimented or insulted. If that express truck driver took Tommy for a dry, then Tommy feels complimented. But if he didn't—but the story is this.

Jones is standing at the corner of Washington and Mill streets when an express truck drives up. Business of the driver waving him across and saying, "Mr. Jones, will you watch this truck for a minute as it has eight cases of whisky in it?"

It was all medicinal whisky, the kind that is prescribed for colds and things, but legal as the income tax. And for a little while, Officer Jones guarded the travelling distillery.

Attended an old fashioned picnic Wednesday afternoon, the kind folks used to hold before the era of hard roads and straight eights. The Grangers of seven counties held their annual reunion over at Etna Springs in Butler county and had Secretary of Agriculture John A. McSparran and State Grange Master E. B. Dorsett as the guests of honor.

This was the kind of picnic that has nearly passed out of the picture. One where everybody had a loaded basket, and came for the day. For a day at least the hay and spuds took care of themselves and the grangers were out for a time. And they had it.

They have a launch over there which rides you up and down the Slippery Rock creek for a couple of miles. And it just occurs to me that this makes the Slippery Rock creek a navigable stream.

There was a time when you might have been unable to distinguish a grangers' picnic from any other kind of picnic, but not any more. The latest thing in beach costumes were out, and the label on the picnic might easily have been any city organization.

Not that it makes any difference, but did you know that Reno, Nevada, was farther west than Los Angeles, and that Jacksonville, Fla., was farther west than Cleveland? And that New Orleans was farther west than Chicago? All right, Hortense, the map.

The governor of Oklahoma is attracting a lot of attention these days with his planting dates, but we have it on the authority of Perry Snyder, superintendent of the County Home, that July 25 is the day to plant turnips.

Seems that a turnip is a delicate sort of thing, accustomed to all the niceties of life, and unless you plant them on July 25 you're just liable to have a flock of discontented turnips on your hands. Discontented turnips fed to cows may change the "discontented cow" idea, and the result is butter that comes in lumps.

The ex-service men of New Castle who served wtih the 28th division are looking forward to August 8 and 9, when the old Keystone division holds its reunion in Mt. Gretna.

About 105 New Castle men went into the 28th when the United States declared herself in on the war, and of this 105, there are many still around New Castle.

A lot of them like Harold Blewitt and Johnny McKibben and Les McClelland were in the 107th field artillery. Bill Cosel was in the 108th and later in the 111th infantry. Louie Conn was in the 109th machine gun and Fred Glenn was in the 193rd motor supply train. Paul Welch was in the sanitary train and so was Bill Whieldon. Dr. Harper was with the field hospital. All of them left here with Troop F, 101st Pennsylvania cavalry but the cavalry was disbanded and the troop scattered.

Validity Of Bonds Upheld By Court

Validity Of Almost $200,000,000 In Bonds Upheld By Ohio Supreme Court

(International News Service)

COLUMBUS, O., June 18.—The validity of almost $200,000,000 worth of special assessment bonds issued by various Ohio counties was upheld today in a decision handed down by the state supreme court.

The validity of the bonds was attacked when the lower court held that the commissioners of Allen county could not tax the property of all citizens to pay a $2,000,000 bond issue for special sewer construction in one isolated section. The case was carried to the higher court to secure a ruling on the legal question.

In its first decision the court held that the action of the commissioners was not proper; but reversed itself in the second decision rendered with a five to two vote.

Action in the first review of the case resulted in a virtual death to the Ohio municipal bond market and cost the state large sums of money ordinarily received in federal aid. Scores of improvement programs were held up past the dead line set to secure government aid for construction projects.

Lantern Lecture At Trinity Church

The last of the lantern slide lectures on the life of Christ will be given next Sunday morning at the 9:30 o'clock session of the church school of Trinity church in the Guild room, being the first floor of the church building, at the corner of North Mill and East Falls streets.

The most eventful period, as far as the records we have go, will be portrayed by reproductions of the paintings of the great artists in handsomely colored slides, namely, the betrayal by Judas, the crucifixion, burial and resurrection through the final great event, Christ's ascension into Heaven. Parents and friends of the pupils of the school and all adults of the parish are invited. The lecture will be given by the Rev. Philip C. Pearson, with T. Gwyn Lewis operating the lantern.
